

HUGE RUM-RUNNING PLANT CAUGHT

TURK, AGED 156, SEEKS WIFE

Planning Divorce; No
Gentleman; He Likes
Brunettes

NEW YORK, July 19.—"She doesn't understand me. All my life I have been looking for a woman to understand me."

Thus today spoke Zaro Agha, the man who went 156 years and eleven weeks without a drink. The "ancient of days" who arrived in New York from Turkey via Providence, R. I., accompanied by a couple of managers, said, after a man's life but he admitted his present wife, a mere maid of 67, was "getting old and cranky." He hinted a divorce—possibly in Reno.

The Turkish gentleman, who added he hoped his present tour of America would be a financial success as though he has not decided just how he plans to rake in the coins, said he was much impressed with American women.

"I like brunettes, plump ones, but blondes are not so bad," he confided.

Agha said this century was preferred by him above others because "there has been more progress in the past twenty-five years, more done for mankind, than in the previous 150 years."

He denied he would come to America at the behest of prohibitionists to show what a 150 years drouth will do to a man and said he did not drink because it was against his religion and not because he considered liquor harmful to health.

Agha expects to appear before various medical associations for a consideration, and his first appearance is scheduled before the Medical Authors and Editors Association in New York.

The old Turk appeared in good health and lifted a 225-pound man off the floor to show his strength. Dr. Harry G. Ebert, United States health service, however, who examined Agha on his arrival here, said he displayed symptoms of senility, hardening of the arteries and a cataract of the right eye. Dr. Ebert would not venture a guess as to the age of the visitor, who is five feet eleven inches tall, weighs 170 pounds and is the father of thirty children.

Recently Agha has had no steady work. His first job was that of porter but after 112 years at that he got tired of it and quit. There was no future, he said, and he got a job juggling pianos. Then he went for a "Grover Whalen" and became official greeter in his own home town of Istanbul. Lately he has been just one of the greeters and "worked out on."

Agha admitted he had fought in several wars, including four against Russia. He volunteered the last time at the age of 103.

There are three things the visitor said he wanted to do in America:

- 1.—Tackle John D. Rockefeller in a game of golf for a side bet of $40.
- 2.—Compete against John B. Voorhis, 101-year-old New Yorker, in a tree sitting contest or something where youth counts most.
- 3.—Match his great-great-great-grandson against Al Singer, the new lightweight boxing king. The great grandson, Arml Mussee, came along with his ancient relative and claims to be lightweight champion of Turkey and all points west.

ROOMERS FLEE FIRE IN SCANTY ATTIRE

CLEVELAND, July 19.—Fifteen persons were forced to the street in their nightclothes here early today when fire swept a large three-story frame rooming house.

One roomer, said to be Meyer Melburg, leaped from a porch roof in his pajamas. A few minutes later he dived back into the burning structure got some clothes, and jumped from the roof a second time.

Hundreds of persons were attracted to the scene of the fire by the spectacular flames that sprouted from the house. Eight companies and a rescue squad joined in fighting the blaze, which threatened for a time to spread to adjacent structures.

CLOSE THEATERS ON SUNDAY; TO APPEAL

STUEBENVILLE, O., July 19.—County authorities here today had abandoned plans for enforcement of the Sunday blue laws. Motion picture theaters, however, will remain closed on the Sabbath, pending an appeal which is to be made on a court order which was issued yesterday in the case of George Dells, manager of the Warner Brothers Theater.

Dells was found guilty yesterday of operating his theater on Sunday in violation of the Ohio Blue laws. Sentence was deferred by the court after defense counsel announced that an appeal, citing error in the charge of the court, would be made.

Judge Jay H. Pasley told the jury that they "had a clear case and could do nothing but return a verdict of guilty," defense counsel said.

EFFORT TO EXHAUST OPPONENTS OF PACT IS POLITICAL MOVE

Long Sessions Mark At- tempt To Ratify Naval Treaty

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Fearing public censure if the senate is gagged by cloture on an issue involving the national defense, the Hoover administration today resumed its studied effort to secure ratification of the London naval treaty by silencing the opposition through physical exhaustion.

With a 12-hour continuous session ending at 11 o'clock last night, administration leaders reconvened the senate at 11 o'clock this morning for another day-and-night session. The full round of talking continuously day and night was thrown on the little band of treaty foes, since all senators friendly to the pact were under strict instructions to sit silently in their seats, pending collapse of the opposition.

Under this program, the administration confidently expected to break the heart of the treaty opposition by Monday night. If the treaty foes survive this test, gag-rule probably will be applied.

A petition, requesting cloture and signed by forty-four senators, has been held up by Senator Watson (R) of Ind. for the last three days. He has told other senators privately that he will not sponsor it unless there is no other means of securing ratification of the treaty. The petition, it introduced, would have to be voted on two days later and if two-thirds of the senate approved it, debate thereafter would be limited to a single hour for each senator. This would bring a vote within a few hours.

The trouble, which the administration faces in invoking cloture, is the fact that it never has been applied to any measure before the senate. It has been invoked on numerous occasions to silence filibusters against legislation, affecting a community or a government department, but never on so grave an issue as a treaty, fixing the status of the American navy. The treaty foes however faced a hopeless task. The brunt of the fighting fell on seven senators—Johnson (R) of California, McKellar (D) of Tennessee, Copeland (D) of New York, Moses (R) of New Hampshire, Hale (R) of Maine, Oddie (R) of Nevada, and Blaine (R) of Wisconsin. Johnson and McKellar have held the floor longer than the other five combined. These two senators plugged every gap in debate, which unless closed, would have resulted in a vote. It was only a question of time of how long these seven men could carry on their one-sided fight against a senate overwhelmingly in favor of the treaty.

Victim Pitched Into Water; Save Four As Yawl Sinks

CHICAGO, July 19.—The gruesome aftermath to a gay boating party was completed today when coast guardsmen, after eight hours of dragging, recovered the body of Miss Betty Ayers, 18, from the waters of Lake Michigan.

Meanwhile, an investigation was launched into the crash between the speed boat on which Miss Ayers and her friends were riding and the yawl Scarab, owned and piloted by George Pulver, millionaire mortgage broker, of Washington, D. C.

Force of the impact hurled the girl into the water. She struck her head on one of the boats and sank out of sight.

The yawl a sixty-three foot motor-and-sail-driven boat was sent to the bottom of the lake. The four men aboard took to a life boat and were rescued later, uninjured.

Children of several wealthy families of Evanston and Wilmette, Chicago suburbs, made up the party aboard the speed boat. The party was given by children of Benjamin H. Marshall, millionaire architect.

Benjamin Marshall, Jr., 21, in charge of the boating party, was hurled into the water and was seriously injured. An operation was performed early today.

There was a radio aboard and the young people were dancing when the crash hurled them across the decks, sending Miss Ayers and Marshall into the lake.

Pulver, a prominent yachtsman, was here to participate in today's races to Mackinac Island. Aboard the yawl with him was a New York friend, Freeman Higgins. Two members of the crew, Paul Wilde and Cy Gross, were also aboard. The Marshall party reported that they saw no lights aboard the Scarab.

The occupants of both boats were taken aboard a passing passenger steamer.

BANK BUILDING RAZED BY FIRE

CANTON, O., July 19.—Investigation was made here today into the origin of a fire which swept the three-story building of the Dime Savings Bank late yesterday, causing damages estimated at between $30,000 and $50,000.

Eight firemen were overcome by smoke while fighting the stubborn blaze. They were resuscitated. A dozen other firefighters who were battling the blaze on the roof of the structure, narrowly escaped serious injury or death when flames and smoke cut off their escape. Fellow firemen hurriedly set up aerial ladders against the building and the trapped men fled to safety.

Nearly 10,000 persons jammed the streets in the vicinity of the burning structure, hindering firemen in their attempts to gain control of the blaze.

Most of the fire damage was concentrated in the quarters of the United Commercial Travelers Lodge.

ENDURANCE BOXERS BEGIN CONTEST

BROCKTON, Mass., July 19.—This "endurance business" which has been sweeping the United States reached the boxing game today.

Clayton Hayden and Edward Eldridge, both 18 and both with some amateur ring experience, agreed to put on the gloves and attempt to set up a new record for continuous boxing. Both weighed 138 pounds. The scene selected for the "non-stop boxing bout" was a vacant lot. Both sides agreed that if by chance either was knocked out the other would continue shadow-boxing. They hoped to keep it at for at least six hours, perhaps longer.

SMITH CONVICTED; STATE PREPARES TO TRY HIS PARAMOUR

Trial Set Monday But May Be Postponed Is Learned

JEFFERSON, O., July 19.—With the twisted life of Tibby Smith, 26, bound-over to death, the relentless forces of law moved heartlessly forward today to commit his nursemaid paramour, Mrs. Maude Lowther, 22-year-old quarter-blood Indian girl and confessed trigger-woman in the cruel murder of Smith's wife, to a similar fate.

A conference between Prosecuting Attorney Howard M. Nator and the defense counsel was called today by Judge Charles R. Sargent to discuss the arrangements for the trial of the Indian girl, who has admitted that she fired the fatal shot in the murder of her illicit sweetheart's wife at Smith's instigation.

Trial of Mrs. Lowther was scheduled for Monday, but it may be postponed. It was regarded probable today that because of the death penalty which was imposed upon Smith yesterday, that there will be a change of venue and the case heard in another county.

Smith was found guilty of first degree murder in common pleas court here yesterday. The jury of twelve inscrutable men deliberated only thirty-five minutes. The verdict means that the young Ashtabula truckman, who has lived a virtual lifetime in the brief period of two months—feeling the thrill of illicit love, the horror of murder, the fear of apprehension, and the agony of trial—will on October 29 experience the sensation of death.

The date for Smith's execution was announced by Judge Sargent following the verdict of the jury and the convicted man's declaration that he "had nothing to say." Smith received the verdict stoically.

BANDIT SUCCUMBS TO BULLET WOUNDS

DAYTON, O., July 19.—James Brink, 27, died in a hospital here early today as the result of shot wounds which he sustained in a gun battle with police in an attempted holdup of the Xenia Ave. branch of the Union Trust Company last April.

Brinks had been in a local hospital for six weeks and then was taken to the county jail. He was returned to the hospital last Monday night.

TYPHOON LANDSLIDE CLAIM HEAVY TOLL IN SOUTHERN JAPAN

GREENE COUNTY HIT AS MERCURY RISES; SHOWERS PROMISED

High Temperature Is Taking Death Toll Through West

Xenia and Greene County, with the rest of the midwest, scorched Friday and Saturday under a return of the torrid wave, which was broken by showers and hail storms which fell in favored sections last Saturday night and Sunday.

Drought, the worst in years, continued, drying up streams and wells in many sections leaving farmers with little water for household uses or stock.

The thermometer jumped to 94 degrees Friday afternoon, the torridity being aided by hot winds which did more damage than the sun to growing crops and pastures which wilted and burned under the combined attack.

After a sweltering night, Xenians arose Saturday morning to face a torrid day. Partially cloudy skies did not give forth the rain they at times promised. There was a little hope of respite, the weather forecast being for continued warm with possible thunder showers Saturday.

Xenians are fortunate however, in that the city faces no water shortage. The municipal plant at Old Town is not yet pumping to capacity. Friday the pumpage jumped to 1,255,000 gallons, which is within 65,000 gallons of the high mark for a twenty-four hour period reached this season. In the first extreme heat wave of the summer the municipal plant pumped 1,320,000 gallons in one day. The second high mark for a twenty-four hour pumping period was 1,270,000, which was made last week.

After Saturday night and Sunday's rains and cooler weather which followed water pumping dropped, but commenced rising again, and Wednesday had reached 1,055,000 gallons. Thursday 1,130,000 gallons were pumped. The Cincinnati Ave. pumping station, used as an emergency source of water is being held in readiness by the water department for use in case of big fires taxing the supply. So far there has been no occasion to cut in on this station.

The unit at the Old Town plant has a capacity of 1,500,000 gallons a day.

CHICAGO, July 19.—Death began its march through the middle West today as the latest heat wave, bringing record breaking temperatures in many places, continued with no promise of immediate relief.

Two men died here from causes attributable to the heat. More than a score of heat prostrations were reported in the Chicago area which sweltered yesterday and last night under a temperature which reached its maximum of 100 degrees yesterday afternoon.

There was no promise of rain or relief today and it was feared that last week's heat wave in which 100 persons died would be duplicated.

The highest temperature yesterday was reported at Phillipsburg, Kan. where the thermometer soared to 113 degrees. In Omaha, Neb., all July records were broken with 107 degrees.

Various communities throughout the corn belt reported that crops were suffering badly from the heat and drought. Old resident said the situation was the most critical in twenty-five years.

DETROIT, July 19.—The Metropolitan area continued to swelter under a blistering heat today as the thermometer registered a near 95-degree temperature. The mercury reached that point yesterday. One drowning was recorded and five persons were prostrated by the heat.

ACCUSE BRITISH OF INTERFERING WITH INTERNAL AFFAIRS

Premier Protests Note Sent; Warships Keep Peace

LONDON, July 19.—Simultaneously with receipt of reports here from Alexandria that the British warships had arrived there for the safeguarding of foreign lives and property, Premier Sidky Pasha of Egypt accused the British government of interfering with internal affairs on the Nile.

protesting the general tenor of the British note which was forwarded to Premier MacDonald that the Egyptian government would be held accountable for the protection of foreign lives and interests, Sidky Pasha asserted he had always demonstrated his government's ability to meet its obligations.

He labelled the dispatching of the warships to Alexandria as an unnecessary act, pointing out that the sporadic outbreak had been quickly quelled and that the ring leaders had been arrested. Military forces at his disposal, he concluded, are sufficient to cope with any outbreak by Wadist factions. While calm was reported here from Alexandria, where fourteen persons were killed in political riots a few days ago, Cairo advised that Wadist agents have been warning European shops that drastic steps would be taken against them if they persisted in continuing in business.

FEDERAL OFFICERS CONFISCATE RADIO STATIONS OF GANG

Plotters In Mansions
Directed Liquor Fleet,
Is Said

NEW YORK, July 19.—Four super-powerful radio stations, capable of communication with Europe, a store of weapons and eight men were captured in raids early today on stately mansions in four exclusive Long Island towns.

These four stations, located after six months' effort by a corps of government radio engineers, have been directing whole fleets of rum boats running from Canada, Europe and the Bahamas to snug Long Island harbors, the agents declared.

The agents forecast that within twenty-four hours they will have nabbed two more powerful "nerve centers" which not only meet liquor, but dope smugglers as well, and will have in jail the master mind back of the multi-million dollar Long Island rum trade.

And not until the unbelievably tremendous illicit liquor handling agency is entirely crippled will the raids stop, it is declared.

Information garnered bit by bit over the six months period has been checked and fitted into every step from now to the end is outlined, the agents revealed.

The flying squadron of twenty-five picked men started out yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and over a 150-mile stretch of territory made its clean-up in an all-night tour.

At the exclusive summer colonies of Quogue, Hampton Bays, Southampton and Mattituck the raids were made. In each case the agents were so well informed before hand as to their places and persons to be taken that there was no violence whatever.

The illicit stations were concealed, in each instance, in sedate mansions such as are occupied by the foundation families of New York, the one at Southampton being directly across the street from the home of Colonel H. H. Rogers, multi-millionaire oil magnate.

Butlers and cooks were installed in each of the houses to lead to their disguise as homes of the wealthy summer colonists. But in each house was cunningly hidden a radio station powered by an independent generator and capable of communicating with a ship anywhere between here and Scotland. Location of the stations had been worked out by the "triangulation method," in which they co-operated with the radio engineers.

G. O'Brien, special agent of the treasury department, aided by Charles M. Bernstein, also of the treasury staff, had charge of the raiding parties. R. A. Batcheller, chief radio engineer; W. N. Patten, radio engineer, and A. J. Lee, assistant, had "spotted" the stations.

COURT WILL DECIDE ON MERGER PROBLEM

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 19.—A "vital and critical point" was at stake today in the trial of the injunction suit against the merger of Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company with Bethlehem Steel Corporation as Judge David G. Jenkins deliberated upon the admissibility of further arguments over the compensation of Eugene G. Grace, as president of Bethlehem.

The point of question arose with the announcement of Frederick H. Wood, Bethlehem counsel, that the merger contract between Sheet and Tube and Bethlehem has been extended to July 31, pending the outcome of the present lawsuit. The merger was to have been consummated last April 30.

In view of the delayed merger contract, Wood declared, Grace should not be compelled to reveal his compensation since April 30. Judge Jenkins had previously ruled that the anti-merger stockholders were entitled to know Grace's salary and bonus agreement since the date they would have become stockholders in the combined companies.

CONFESSES MURDER OF WOMAN TO POLICE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 19.—Bernardo Thompson, of Dorchester, Mass., today confessed to police here that he murdered Mrs. Edith Thompson Wight, his aunt, in her home in Saugus, Mass., "because she was talking about my mother." Thompson walked up to a policeman in the center of the city early today, and asked to be arrested, "that the police are looking for me." He had a copy of a Boston newspaper.

The officer, Vincent Targowski, promptly complied with the youth's request and took him to detective headquarters where within a few minutes he had written a confession, according to police.

RICE-WOLFE NUPTIALS

PERFORMED IN URBANA

Interest to Xenians was the marriage of Lieut. Harry E. Rice, Jr., to Miss Marybel Wolfe, which took place at the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. V. G. Wolfe, Urbana, Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The ceremony was performed in the living room of the Wolfe home before a small assemblage of close relatives and friends. The Wolfe home was decorated with large bouquets of summer garden flowers. The bride wore a traveling suit of blue crepe de chine for the ceremony which was performed by the Rev. W. L. Guard, retired pastor of the Lutheran Church.

A two course luncheon was served the guests following the ceremony and later in the evening Lieut. and Mrs. Rice left for Newport, R. I., where they will reside.

Lieut. Rice is well known in this city as his father, Mr. Harry E. Rice is owner and publisher of the Xenia Herald. (The following letter from Thomas M. Earl, naturalist and taxidermist of Xenia, R. R. 2, near Cedarville, relates to a story carried in this paper regarding two young owls captured recently by O. E. Humphrey, farmer, east of New Burlington. Mr. Humphrey did not have an expert opinion of the owls he captured but attempted to identify them from a book on natural history and believed them to be Canadian hawk-owls. Mr. Earl's comment is interesting because of the information he gives concerning the owls found in this section of Ohio—Editor.)

MONKEY-FACED OWLS

Editor Xenia Gazette:

I was interested and not a little surprised to read in your columns of Wednesday about a so-called "Canadian Hawk Owl" found nesting on the premises of a farmer east of New Burlington. Evidently someone has made a wrong identification of the species in question, as the hawk owl is an exceedingly rare winter visitor in northern Ohio and is not known to nest in this state. I know of only one record of a specimen being taken in Ohio.

The bird found nesting will be discovered to be the ordinary and by no means uncommon barn owl (also called screech owl). It has a way when alarmed of protruding its beak, giving to the face a monkey-like appearance. The eyes of the barn owl are black, those of the hawk owl yellow. The color of the barn owl is tawny, with white breast and underparts, speckled with black. The color of the hawk owl is grayish heavily barred with black. Let me say in addition that the barn owl is a very useful resident and should not be molested. Its food is almost entirely mice. It is not known to harm either poultry or game, but is worth a dozen felines in preying upon rodents. It is protected at all seasons by law and the killing of the bird is punishable by a fine of from twenty-five to two hundred dollars. The barn owl came to us from the South; the hawk owl comes from the North. The former is now well distributed throughout the state, but everywhere it meets with a relentless and unmerciful persecution on the part of sportsmen and others who are ill informed of its good qualities. Why should we pump the monkey-faced owl full of shot everytime it appears on the premises and says: "Good morning, I have come to eat up your mice?"—Thomas M. Earl.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

GIVE AND GROW—Give to him that asketh thee, and from him that would borrow of thee turn not thou away.—Matthew 5:42.

HELPFUL RULING

The United States court of appeals in Asheville, North Carolina, has handed down a decision that deserves careful attention from our tribunals throughout the country. Defendants who had been found guilty of liquor smuggling by a court in Baltimore, appealed and contended that the pleadings in the trial court were faulty in construction, and that therefore they should be let out of prison. But Judge John J. Parker, who presides in Asheville, declined to see it that way. He said, "The time has passed when convictions will be reversed in the courts of the United States for mere technical defections in pleadings."

General recognition of the superiority of practical justice over mere technicality accorded in this ruling, is one of the great needs of the country in its fight to curb crime. In some courts, in some places, technicality has become such a fetish that frequently it is more obstructive of justice than any other one thing. It causes well nigh endless delays creates ridiculous complications, and throws a burden upon the police and prosecuting officers that plays directly into the hands of organized crime. In a lamentably large number of instances, the intricacies of legal procedure are a positive bulwark for wrongdoers against justice. A person accused of banditry or murder may be so clearly guilty that there is no doubt in the mind of anybody interested in the case regarding the fact; but a technicality may intervene, there may have been some little irregularity in the information, some petty defect of procedure, some infinitesimal omission or piece of carelessness, and everything is upset. The thug grins and goes free to continue his career. Those who are trying to get the upper hand of crime in America will never have a fair chance until all that ends, and any judge who makes a ruling which tends to break down exaggerated respect for technicality deserves recognition and thanks.

STUDENT WAITERS

An uncounted multitude of young people from schools had colleges are doing toilsome work all through this summer season, as waiters in hotels and restaurants, mostly in summer resorts. It is a splendid example of industry and ambition.

As these demure girls enter the hotel dining room, wearing the uniform of their position, you can hardly see them as they really are. The girl who so respectfully takes your order for ham and eggs, may be a college student who at off hours is working over her Latin and philosophy, and who knows far more than you do about history and mathematics.

Or that other quiet girl, who is so respectful and obedient, may be a gifted school teacher, who through the rest of the year occupies her position of authority and command in the school room, and a group of parents look up to her as the wise counsellor and inspiring leader who is directing their children along the paths of knowledge. There are many thoughts in the minds of these silent maidens which you never dream of.

Some purse proud guests may think that waiting on table is a rather menial work, and look down at these young folks a bit. But these waitresses have more reason to look down on them, since these educated young people really know so much more of the world's wisdom than many of those whom they serve.

One can't help admiring all the young women and men students and others who take up such work as a means of obtaining an education. In making this effort to fit themselves for life, they show a fine seriousness of purpose. An education for which they gave and sacrificed so much will seem very precious to them. They will not fritter away their study time in idle pursuits, but will get the best that colleges and schools have to teach them.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

HOW NOT TO PUNISH

Don't humiliate children in school by punishing them in public. This is wise counsel given by Father Macelwane, Toledo educator, at the Catholic educational convention in New Orleans. Father Macelwane knows the value of the sense of self-respect and the importance of giving a child confidence and self-assurance. His mind and emotions may be crippled for life if teachers, whatever discipline they apply, do not show respect for the pupil's personality.

WHAT BABIES WANT

American Medical association members, meeting in convention, are told that when the baby wants meat and potatoes and refuses to drink milk, he is expressing himself normally—just like grown-up people. However, nobody would advocate feeding the baby a great deal of either meat or potatoes. It is easy to see that babies are much like adults and adults are much like babies. Because we want what we want doesn't always mean that we need it or ought to have it or that it would be good for us. Desiring it may be perfectly normal. Getting it may be easy. But it is not a sound policy for babies or men to think the thing they want is the thing they ought to have. We have been given judgment for some use. It's a great thing to use. It doesn't wear out. It improves if put to service.

AMERICA AT ITS BEST

A little Nebraska girl carries off first honors in scholarship in her county. Her average was nearly 97. And note the fact that her parents can neither speak nor write English. This is what America can do at its best. It can offer a chance. It can offer education, honor, victory without pull or privilege. No nation has a corner on the brain market. We want the little boys and girls of "foreigners." They make good. We don't care anything about going back to their great-grandfathers to find out what boat they came over in.

TOO FAST

An able lawyer, attorney in a noted case, kills himself just before court convenes. Friends talking to him earlier saw nothing wrong with him. Overwork and worry had been too much for him. He broke under the strain. Motor cars run beautifully at 40 miles per hour, also at 70 and more. But you can't run your motor day in and day out for a month at 70 miles an hour. It isn't made that way. Neither is the human system. Some men try it. Men have a way of covering up for a long time the things that are inside—the hopes, fears, ambitions, discouragement, despair. It is not so much courage as it is pride. It is a noble characteristic of people at their best. But the speed gets them before long.

We don't know the man we meet every day. We know how he looks, acts. We know what he says. We cannot look within. Nobody can. He may be running, inside, at 70 miles per hour.

One Nation, indivisible. With Liberty and Justice to all."

Lindy's Flight

No, he was the sixty-seventh person to do so. Aloek and Brown, the crew of the NC-4, and two Zeppelin flights preceded Lindbergh across the Atlantic by air.

Baseball Careers

What age is considered the turning point in the career of a baseball player?

There is no definite age at which a baseball player's ability to play takes a definite turn. Usually between 35 and 40 a man's stamina and speed are reduced so he can't play through a strenuous season. On the other hand, Babe Ruth, who is 37, seems to be enjoying his best year.

How Much Money?

How much money is in circulation in the United States?

The treasury department lists $8,118,090,754 in circulation, although $725,649,727 is held in the treasury vaults. The former figure is the total of coined money and currency on the books of the treasury as outstanding.

Pa., Penn., or Penna.

The postoffice department, which is considered the authority on correct abbreviations for the names of states, uses Pa. in its publications.

Copyrights

Is it possible to obtain a copyright without the assistance of an attorney?

Yes. To obtain a copyright send $1 together with a copyright application and the required copies of the material to be copyrighted to the copyright office of the Library of Congress. Application forms may be obtained from your postmaster or from the copyright office without charge.

Which is the right side of a house? Is there a permanent right side to anything?

Right and left sides are always relative. Since a house is stationary, and usually faces a street, the side on your right, when you are facing the street, could be called the right side.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK.—The other afternoon Amos started down to the bank with Andy to draw out $75 of his savings—to sink in Misto Van Poters "Holding Company."

And a radio fan went in to say that if Amos got stung on that particular "propollition" he, the radio fan, would stop using the tooth paste Amos 'n' Andy are advertising.

COCKEYED FAME

The construction of the two tallest towers in Turret Town—the Chrysler and the Bank of Manhattan buildings—developed into an altitude contest, ending with the Chrysler pile topping its rival by an inch or two.

Coming up the bay, from the Highlands, the Bank of Manhattan Building commands the Battery skyline, dwarfing the giant structures that cluster around it.

Justice is blind and Fame is cockeyed.

Almost everyone on the excursion steamers points to the Bank of Manhattan Building and exclaims:

"Ain't that Chrysler Buildin' a peach?"

EVEN UP

One of the best photographers on the Avenue employs a young woman with a dulcet voice, who, on occasions, gets into telephonic communications with celebrities for the purpose of acquiring stock photographs. Recently she called Mrs. Post and was rebuked for what Mrs. Post construed as an intrusion on her privacy.

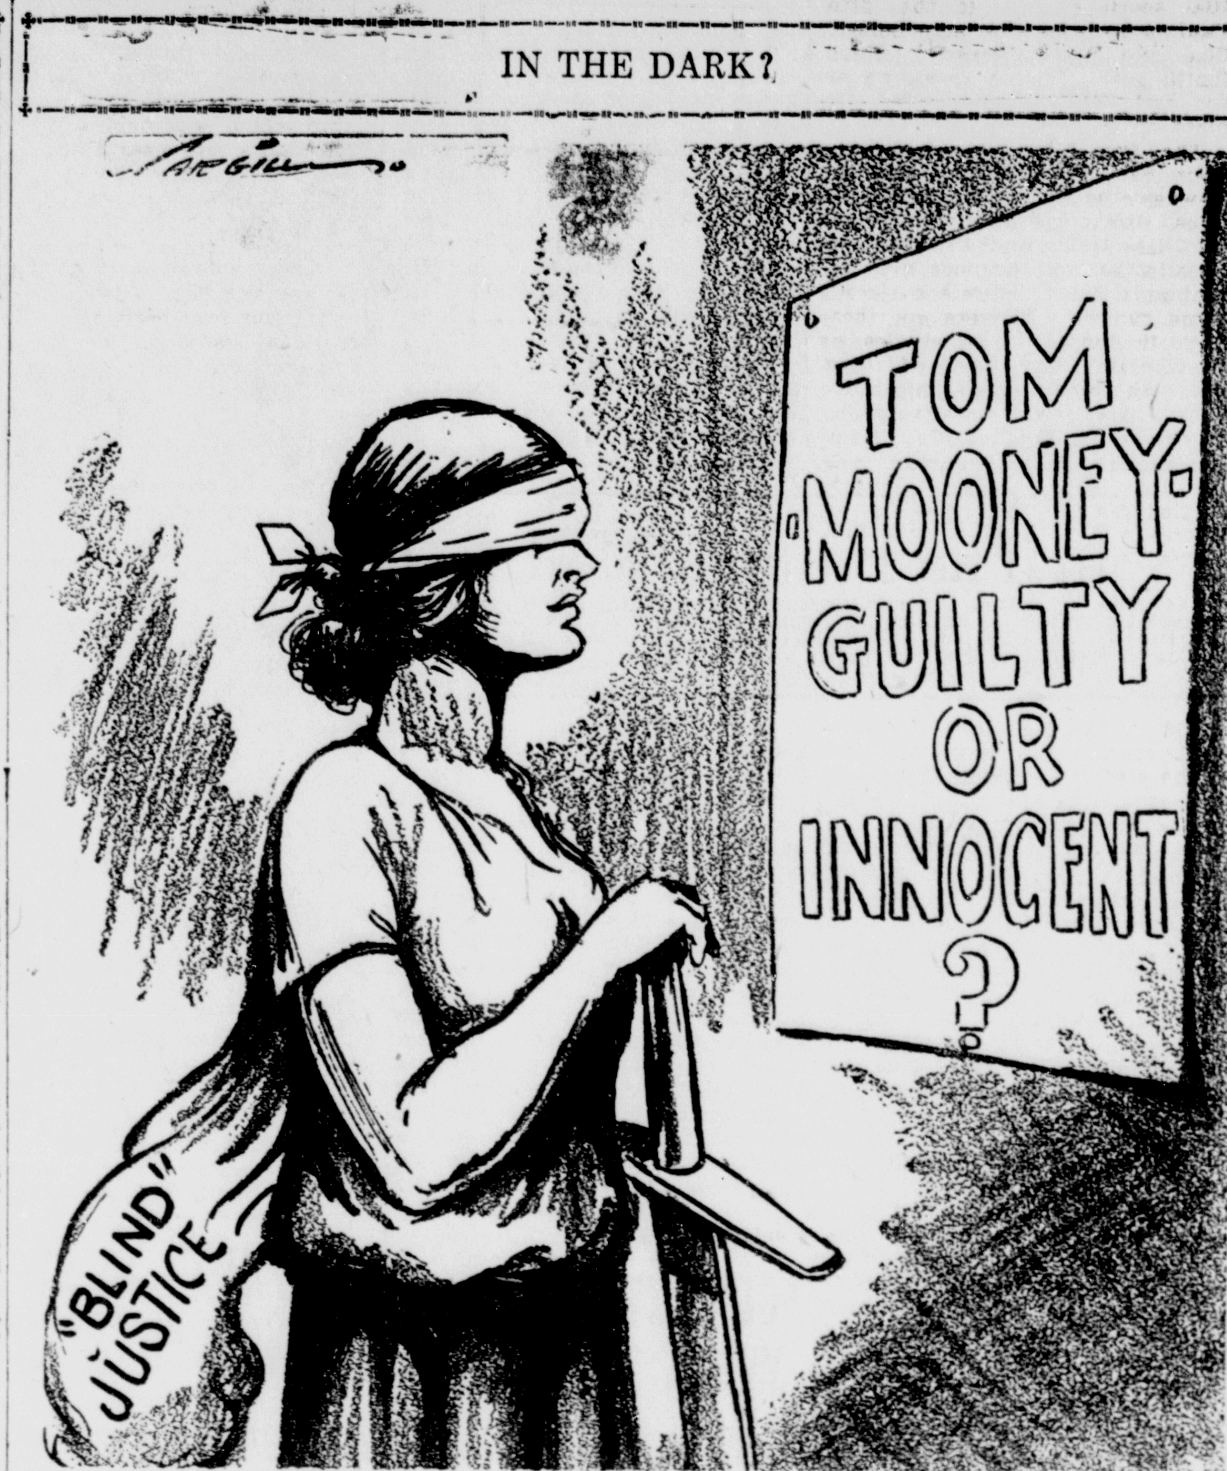

As a matter of fact, the author of "Etiquette" hung up on the young woman, who, ten minutes later, called the number back and dispensed her dulcet tones, inquired:

"You are," was the reply.

"I believe you wrote the book on Etiquette?"

"Yes, I did."

"Well, read it!" snapped the young woman, and then SHE hung up.

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Whether or not Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio was just about to become chairman of the Republican national committee I didn't know when I stopped in at his office one day recently, but I did know he was being strongly urged for the post.

He was being strongly opposed also. Senator George M. Moses of New Hampshire among others, was opposing him. Never mind the others; anyone who is opposed by Senator Moses is safe in considering that he is being opposed strongly. Moses never opposes anyone or anything any other way.

Exactly why the New Hampshire senator objected to the Ohio senator for the G. O. P. national committee chairmanship is not clear.

True, they are opposite types in many respects.

Sensor Fess is ultra-orthodox and highly reverential of all things respectable. Senator Moses is to the last degree unconventional and bitterly cynical in his attitude toward everything. Moses is witty and epigrammatic; Fess serious and austere.

Nevertheless, they do have one characteristic in common: It is hard to tell whether Moses is more conservative than Fess, or Fess is more conservative than Moses. Anyway, they are a couple of the most conservative conservatives in the senate.

Illustratively, Moses will be recalled as having referred, not so long ago, to his so-called "progressive" G. O. P. fellow-solons as "sons of wild jackasses," whereas Fess termed them "pseudo Republicans."

That they had the same general idea is apparent, though they clothed it differently. Fess expressed himself in scholarly style; Moses scornfully.

Both jabs at the progressive also caused trouble. The Buckeye senator and the Old Granite statesman have that faculty in common likewise—a trick of firing off remarks with a powerful recoil.

Basically one would think that Senators Fess and Moses ought to be in agreement, despite their superficial dissimilarities. Their economic creeds are as alike as two peas—and economic issue usually count a good deal more among senators than any other considerations, such as Fess' dryness versus Moses' wetness, which is point of divergence between them certainly, but not necessarily a very important one.

Nevertheless, Moses began to be quoted on all sides as anti-Fess mighty soon after talk of the latter successor, as Claudius H. Huston's successor at the head of the G. O. P. national committee.

One theory was that Moses wanted the place himself. Quite likely he had something to do with it. Aside from that, however, Moses and Fess have two such positive personalities that I imagine they rasp one another involuntarily. Moses is a newspaper man, accustomed to telling folk what's what in his editorial columns. Fess is an ex-college president, not a bit inclined to tolerate back-talk from undergraduates.

Anyway, Senator Fess was getting plenty of publicity in connection with Republican chairmanship prospects and it seemed like a suitable time to pay him a respectful visit. There was a first class excuse for it, too.

The Ohioan is vice chairman (which really means that he is chairman, because the titular chairmanship is held by President Hoover, who is too busy to bother with any of the actual work) of the U. S. commission for the celebration (in 1932) of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington. Thus he was bound not to turn down an opportunity to get some free advertising for the father of his country—the commission's whole problem being, as the senator said himself, "to make the American people George Washington minded."

And sure enough, he grabbed at the chance. He sat for his picture—out on the balcony in front of his office, opposite the Capitol building. He spoke enthusiastically of the first president's high qualities as a soldier and a statesman. He didn't refer to the G. O. P. national committee chairmanship, to be sure—but what could he have said on that subject of any consequence? Not knowing himself whether or not Claudius Huston was going to resign and create a vacancy.

Sensor Fess is rather a peculiar combination.

He is a bookish individual (as I said, he is an ex-college president). One is not surprised to learn that he is chairman of the senate's library committee. But he is also high up on the list of its interstate commerce committee members—this being distinctly a business committee. Moreover, he is a member of the foreign relations committee, which deals with world affairs.

And don't forget—he knows his politics. Otherwise he never would have been considered for command of the G. O. P. campaign organization.

In his own way, he is a singularly well-rounded personality. He is not a back-slapper. He emphatically is what one would call "a good man," of the somewhat stern, old-fashioned kind of goodness, I would say, and as determined as flint on the principle that the good folk shall run America—a fundamentalist. But he is no cloistered scholar. He has force, convictions and experience of a worldly strictly practical sort to go with his learning and is a political factor to be reckoned with.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Garnishes How much is added to the value of a dish when it is prettily served? A dash of paprika makes the mashed potatoes look much more enticing and takes but a second to add. A sprig of parsley gives a light touch to the meat dish and is quickly placed. A few celery curls dress up the platter holding the roast, and makes another way to use up the coarse stalks of celery.

We are all familiar with serving cheese with apple or fresh fruit or pumpkin pie. But just a cube of cheese is not nearly as attractive as a slice of the same cheese cut with a fancy cutter into different shapes, trees, flowers or conventional designs.

"SUSANNA BROWN EYES H."

Dear, haven't you enough sense to know that a man 32 years old and married, who tells you the tale that all married men tell the girls who are fools enough to believe them—that he does not love his wife; that she doesn't "understand him"—isn't one to make a girl happy, even if she really loves him?

Of course you won't believe men, and it's a great pity, too, but if he isn't true to his wife, he isn't likely to be true to you, is he? In the first place, he is too old for you—which you also won't believe. In the second, if he and his wife really are unhappy together, why do they not separate, and then he would be free to make love to you?

You ask me what you shall do. Think for a moment; if another girl said she loved him and tried to take him from you, how would you feel? Well, that is probably how you would feel. If she found out about you, I think you should tell him to go and get his divorce if he is unhappy with his wife and then you will listen to him.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I have read your advice. Please tell me what to do. I am in love with a married man. I am 16 and he has no children. He said he did not love his wife. He said he was willing to get a divorce for me and he is 32. Please don't tell me to give him up. Please answer as quickly as you can. This is not puppy love. It is real love."

Writer Urged To Consult Doctor

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

"Please discuss amebic dysentery in your column. I think the subject is of general interest. S."

Yes, amebic dysentery is of general interest. S. However, a sufferer must be under the supervision of a personal physician.

Anyone who suffers from a chronic diarrhea, with mucus and blood, should go to a physician for a complete examination, including a rectal examination and a microscopic examination of the stools, to determine the cause. It may be due to the dysentery bacillus, a type of the dysentery, the lowest form of vegetative life, or to some other infection, or to entameba (the lowest order of animal life, usually called ameba), or to some prolonged wrong dietary habit, or to some mechanical factors—growths, etc.

In any case of acute diarrhea, with blood and mucus, the patient should go to bed and have active medical treatment. In the acute stage of entameba dysentery (as in other dysenteries), there are pain and griping and tenderness and many watery stools. The condition may become chronic, or it may become latent and apparently arrested, when some dietary or other hygienic indiscretion will precipitate it again. The disease is most prevalent in tropical countries, and especially affects the workers whose occupations are apt to bring them into contact with a contaminated water supply—loggers, truck farmers, railroad constructors, civil engineers, etc.

In the life cycle of the entameba, they go into a resting stage, an encysted form, a much tinier form, which is very resistant to treatment or other agents which usually kill other microscopic animals and vegetable life. If there is any unclean material around, flies and other insects having access to it contaminate food that they light on; and those who eat the food may become infected. (The campaign against flies and other insects is mainly because of the danger of transmitting infections of different diseases.)

In infected districts, the water and milk should be sterilized by boiling, and raw fruits and vegetables eaten raw should be exceedingly carefully washed and scrubbed and placed in a sterilizing fluid before being eaten. At the Battle Creek sanitarium they use a solution of dioxygen (peroxide of hydrogen)—one part to twenty of water. In Kellogg's "New Dietetics" he speaks of using a chloride of lime solution now, for the disinfection of the fruits and vegetables used at the sanitarium. They use one teaspoonful of the chemically pure chloride of lime to 25 quarts of water. Vegetables and fruits, after being thoroughly washed, are allowed to stand in this solution for five minutes. Neither of these solutions imparts the flavor of any other of the food properties, in any way.

One of the most important things to be said about this entameba infection (and it applies to other infections) is that a correct diet is a tremendous factor in keeping the mucous membranes of the intestinal tract so resistant that even though you should get infecting agents, unless they were very virulent and in very large numbers, they wouldn't cause any trouble.

McCarrison, in a number of experiments with monkeys, showed that those on a deficient diet would contract amebic dysentery, while those kept under the same environmental and in the same rooms, but living on a correct diet, would not develop dysentery, even though exposed to the infection and having some of the organisms in their stool.

So there are two things to suggest to you, S.: Put yourself into the hands of a competent physician and take care of your general health, and especially have a balanced diet. We have an article on the subject which you may have by following column rules.

Can't Give Up Children

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a woman of 45 years and have been married but divorced from my husband. I have two children by his first marriage. They don't belong to me but I have had them since they were tiny little girls. One is eight and the other is seven, and I have had them six years and they seem like my own. I love them and can't bear to give them up.

"I have a chance to marry a nice man and I don't know what to do. As I won't give up the children, I have struggled through this far, maybe I can make it by myself. They are sweet little girls. Please give me your advice as to what to do."

"MOTHER OF TWO SWEET GIRLS."

I should think the nice man might take the two little girls, too, wouldn't he? You can't very well turn the children out. You wouldn't feel happy knowing they had no one to care for them, even if you didn't love them, and no matter how well your marriage turned out. And as you do love them and want them, I'd never give them up unless compelled to, if I were you.

Men and women can get along even if things are not so pleasant, but little children need a mother's care. You are fortunate to have these two dear children to look after and they are very lucky to have you to take care of them and love them.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I have read your advice. Please tell me what to do. I am in love with a married man. I am 16 and he has no children. He said he did not love his wife. PINCH HITTING for Phil Frame BY R. A. H.

Louis Menowitz and his partner, have been halted in their construction of a miniature golf course at Detroit St. and Fairground Ave. by a temporary restraining order granted in common pleas court on petition of W. L. Miller, representing himself and other neighbors.

Menowitz had hoped to have the course ready for this week, but with the application for a permanent injunction set down for the latter part of next week, and a good week's work still to be done on the course, there will be at least a two weeks wait even if he wins in the courts.

Neighbors bringing the action maintain that a nuisance will be created if the course is permitted to be opened and this is a question for the court to decide. Dayton has a number of such courses, many of them in the residential districts. Wilmington and Washington C. H. each have two such courses, built and in use for some time. Xenia has one, the course operated by the Henrie boys on the Springfield Pike and a visit there will show that the game is conducted orderly and even quietly.

The silence that engulfed Phil Frame, Art Hyman and "Skipper" Finlay when they left here for New York last Saturday has been broken by a letter Phil wrote his folks.

The "three musketeers" drove all Saturday night to reach Washington, Pa., the next morning at 5 o'clock and they arrived in New York Monday at 4 p. m. They saw the Cincinnati Reds defeat the Giants 14 to 8 the other day and saw Singer win the lightweight championship from Sammy Mandell Thursday night.

The trio called on Don and Art Currie at Lord and Taylor's and strolled up Broadway to give the effete Easterners a treat. They didn't say a word about coming home so there is no relief in sight for the readers of this column.

Standardization of softball rules in order to permit of inter-city competition on an even basis, is one of the things being sought by Bill Baxley, impresario of the high-flying Lang team in the National League.

Bill has hopes for organization of an inter-city softball league comprising teams from Xenia, Dayton, Springfield, Wilmington and possibly Washington C. H. To make such a league operative, it would be necessary to have the rules standardized and this now appears to be quite a stumbling block. Xenia likes the game the way it is played here, with the bases just half the distance for regulation baseball, the outteam ball used, nine men on a side and players permitted to steal bases.

Springfield, however, began playing softball before any of the other cities in this section, and up there the game favored is one in which sixty-foot bases, an in-team ball, ten men teams and no base-stealing constitutes the rules. The Springfield players also use spiked shoes.

The question of the ball might be easily decided and even the ten-man team idea might be accepted here, because it makes for a closer game. In the meantime the league is being encouraged by intercity matches in which considerable interest is being aroused.

Thwarted a year ago by Lefty O'Doul of the lowly Phils, Babe Herman, pride of Flatbush, is hot after the National League batting crown this year.

Babe is hitting up close to .400, which is approximately the figure that will have to be maintained if he wants to win the crown. Babe is not "base hit crazy," as was charged last year, but is getting hits with the idea of helping the team, which is fighting for the senior loop flag.

Harry Hellmann, the Cincinnati Reds outfielder, may yet have to be considered in passing out batting honors in the National League. One of the reasons Harry came to the Reds so willingly from the Detroit Tigers, where he was a fixture for years, was because of the opportunity the trade gave him to shoot for the National League hitting crown. Hellmann has won the American League title several times and is anxious to set a record by also winning the top position among National League hitters.

AMERICANS FLEE FROM COMMUNISTS

PEKING, July 19.—Americans residing at Yochow again were evacuated and taken aboard a United States gunboat when large bands of Communist raiders approached the vicinity, according to a report received here today.

The American legation meanwhile was informed that attempts to dislodge northern troops from the American Lutheran Augustana Synod mission at Hanchow, Hanan province, were unsuccessful.

GRAHAM PAINTS BEAT GEYERS IN FAST NATIONAL LEAGUE GAME

The Geyers, one-time leading contenders for the title in the National League, dropped from a second-place tie with the Downtown County Club to third place in the standing by losing a bitterly-fought battle to the trailing Graham Paints at Cox Field Friday evening by the score of 15 to 11.

The Geyers outthrew the enemy 20 to 16, but were impotent with men on bases, and many athletes were permitted to languish on the paths as their mates hopelessly popped up or grounded out when hits would have meant runs. While Lloyd Downey, the bridge room, yielded twenty safeties, he managed to bear down carefully when runs threatened and his mates gave him brilliant support.

The Paints accumulated a run in the third stanza. Downey singled and W. Cope was safe on Boxwell's miff. Bice popped to the pitcher and Briley forced Downey at third. Kersey's single plated W. Cope with the first tally. The Geyers picked up two in their in-

LANGS REGISTER 14 TO 8 VICTORY OVER SPRINGFIELD TEAM

Beat International Harvester Team At Its Own Game

Meeting the International Harvester Co. team of Springfield at its own game in Springfield Friday night, the Lang Chevrolet, leaders of the National League, were pounded out a 14 to 8 victory.

The game was played according to softball rules as used in Springfield, with an in-team ball, ten men on a side and sixty-foot bases, and the Langs found this system to their liking. Williams started on the mound for the winners but retired in the fifth in favor of Gibney, who had been playing first base.

Lindeman and Hilderbrant shouldered the hurling burden for the Springfield team and the Xenia team outthrew the foe 15 to 13 on the evening with Ruse leading the attack with three safeties. Taylor contributed a mighty drive for a homer for the harvester team in the fifth. A large number of Xenia fans accompanied the Langs to Springfield and the players and visitors were entertained at a dance given by the harvester company in the company field house after the game. GERMANY OPERATES WITHOUT REICHSTAG

BERLIN, July 19.—Political activity in Germany was a hectic one today as preparations were launched for a national election campaign following the uproarious dissolution of the Reichstag yesterday after it had rejected Chancellor Bruening's finance decrees by a vote of 236 against 221.

The new elections, it was announced by the government, will be held September 14. The constitution requires that the new parliament convene within thirty days of that date.

In the meantime, the Bruening cabinet will govern the country dictatorially and issue emergency decrees under the sanction of President Von Hindenburg by virtue of the emergency clauses afforded by the German constitution.

NEW AGREEMENT ENDS COAL STRIFE

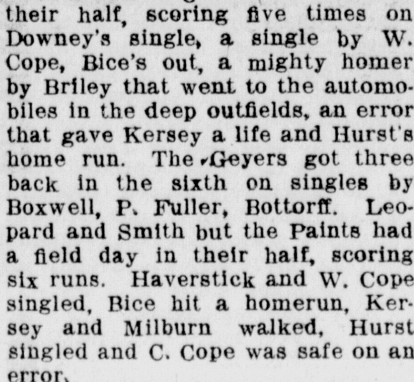

NEW YORK, July 19.—Strife in the anthracite region was held at an end today following adoption by the miners' full scale committee of a tentative agreement for the next five and one-half years between miners and operators.

The agreement, effective April 1, 1936, and taking the place of the present agreement which expires September 1, this year, will be ratified by the tri-district convention of the hard coal miners in Scranton, Pa., on August 4, according to John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and other union chiefs, who have been in New York for three weeks in conference with operators. Lewis called the agreement a remarkable contribution to the stability of American industry and prosperity.

Tennis HOW IT IS PLAYED

By WILLARD CROCKER
Canadian Davis Cup Star
Written for Central Press
No. 6—COURT POSITION

Court position is one of the most important elements in tennis, and the fundamentals are simple. Court position means "Be in the right position of the court at the right time." To be caught "out of position" is tragic. To catch or work your opponent out of position is the ultimate end and object of every stroke and move in the game.

There are only two positions on the court where it is safe or successful to be. First, in the back-court, two or three feet behind the baseline center, and second, approximately five or six feet from the net.

NEVER BE CAUGHT IN THE CENTER OF YOUR COURT; it is tennis suicide. The first position at the baseline should become your home office, from where you go and do your job and return. There should be no variance from this procedure. Keep your home office in your mind at all times. When the opportunity arrives for you to go to the net—GO AT ONCE and carry out your objective, which is to put the ball away. If you are forced back, go directly to the "home office" and prepare for the next move. It is one or the other at all times. To maintain and use these positions to full advantage the ball must be kept in play at all cost.

Make this law and keep it—KEEP YOUR EYE ON THE BALL—AND GET THE BALL OVER THE NET.

WOMEN ENJOY FIRST CAMP PERIOD THIS WEEK NEAR CLIFTON

Thirty-eight full-time campers from Madison, Clinton and Greene Counties attended the Woman's Camp which was held at the 4-H Club Camp site near Clifton this week. There were fifty-seven visitors and part-time campers who enjoyed part of the fun.

The program was arranged as a rest and recreational period for rural women. Mrs. Elizabeth Lane from Columbus, assisted as a recreational leader and gave suggestions for both camp fire and vespers services. Miss Minnie Price, state leader of home demonstration agents was full-time camper and led in the discussions at the afternoon appreciation hour.

At one period she chose "Real Values" as her subject and called the attention of the women to the valuable things of life that money can not buy. At another period Miss Price led a discussion of the purpose and value of a Woman's Camp, and there was a unanimous vote to have another camp next year. The camp was under the direction of Elizabeth Masters, Clinton County home demonstration agent; Lucy Folsom, Madison County home demonstration agent and Ruth Radford, Greene County home demonstration agent.

This was the first time Greene County women had enjoyed such a program and the ten women who represented this county soon became enthusiastic campers, according to Ruth Radford, home demonstration agent. Those present were: Mrs. Jacob Heinz, Jamestown; Mrs. Leroy Jacobs, Yellow Springs; Mrs. David Bradford, Xenia; Mrs. Allen Andrew, Zimmerman; Mrs. C. D. Mairs, New Burlington; Mrs. Forrest Badford, Yellow Springs; Mrs. James H. Harner, Xenia; Mrs. E. J. Statard, Zimmerman and Mrs. Maywood Turner, Cedarville.

Besides these there were twenty-eight Greene County folks who came to call on the campers and received value from a part of the program.

There have been several names entered on next year's camp list and Miss Radford says she will be glad to add any others who might be interested.

MOVE FOR REHEARING OF REQUEST REFUSED

Application of the Central Ohio Lines Inc. for a rehearing relative to the order of the state utilities commission refusing the company's request for permission to extend its Chillicothe-Xenia bus route to Dayton was rejected Saturday.

The action of the commission is expected to pave the way for the company to appeal to the supreme court. The company, of which Carl Fent, Jamestown, is head, wants to extend the bus line from Xenia to Dayton through Osborn.

The proposal gained favor here among business men because it would provide a transportation outlet for the northwestern part of the county to Xenia. The application was opposed by the Dayton and Xenia Traction Co.

The entire force of the Southwestern Portland Cement Co., at Osborn, fought for five hours Friday, a grass and weed fire that threatened to assume dangerous proportions.

The flames swept over twenty-seven acres of the company's property and, driven by the wind, was rapidly approaching the property of the Wabash Cement Co., when it was subdued. Flames, at times, were ten feet high, fed by the tall grass and high weeds that covered the fields. The fire was beaten out finally by men with shovels and brush.

The blaze started from sparks thrown out by a steam shovel. When ordinary methods were found vain in stopping it, the entire force was called from the plant, and from 11 until 4 o'clock the men labored under a blazing sun in temperature close to 100 degrees beating out the fire in the dry grass and weed growth. Skins of the fire fighters burned and blistered under the combined heat of the sun and the fire.

BANK BANDIT ENDS LIFE TO CHEAT LAW

SAN QUENTIN, Cal., July 19.—Scheduled to hang July 25 for murder, William (Red) O'Brien, Oakland bank bandit, committed suicide today in his cell at San Quentin prison.

Guards found O'Brien dead in his cell. He is believed to have poisoned himself.

Clarence Mickie, 21, who is spending several weeks in Xenia on a furlough from the United States Navy, received painful injuries to his left leg when he was thrown from a motorcycle on W. Main St. Friday evening. The motorcycle was the property of Lloyd Berry, 111 1/2 W. Main St., at whose home the Mickie boy was staying. Mickie had been attempting to start the motor of the motorcycle and was being towed by a friend in an auto. Finally, when the motor started Mickie lost control of it and crashed into a parked automobile. The car belonged to a Mr. Pratt, of Dayton and a front wheel of the machine was damaged.

Mickie was removed to the office of Dr. W. A. Galloway, W. Main St., where his injuries were dressed and later was taken to the Berry home. An x-ray was to be taken Saturday to determine the extent of the youth's injuries.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 19.—The market showed somewhat of a respite from its spirited advances of the past week, in today's abbreviated session, and a generally softer tone brought about a minor set of declines in the main body of stocks.

With the notable exception of U. S. Steel which further extended its advance into new high ground, the general run of speculative favorites gave way to profit-taking and professional pressure. Steel rose a point to 168 1/2, before meeting resistance, but other rector leaders such as American Can, General Electric, Radio, Westinghouse, Vanadium and Cast Throwing showed declines up to 3 points.

Utilities ruled highly irregular, although rallying tendencies midway in the session brought them up from their extreme lows of the first hour. Strong demand for American and Foreign Power, North American, and United Corporation was offset by losses in Electric Power and Light, Consolidated Gas, American Tel and Tel and National Power and Light.

WOMEN ENJOY FIRST CAMP PERIOD THIS WEEK NEAR CLIFTON

Thirty-eight full-time campers from Madison, Clinton and Greene Counties attended the Woman's Camp which was held at the 4-H Club Camp site near Clifton this week. There were fifty-seven visitors and part-time campers who enjoyed part of the fun.

The program was arranged as a rest and recreational period for rural women. Mrs. Elizabeth Lane from Columbus, assisted as a recreational leader and gave suggestions for both camp fire and vespers services. Miss Minnie Price, state leader of home demonstration agents was full-time camper and led in the discussions at the afternoon appreciation hour.

At one period she chose "Real Values" as her subject and called the attention of the women to the valuable things of life that money can not buy. At another period Miss Price led a discussion of the purpose and value of a Woman's Camp, and there was a unanimous vote to have another camp next year. The camp was under the direction of Elizabeth Masters, Clinton County home demonstration agent; Lucy Folsom, Madison County home demonstration agent and Ruth Radford, Greene County home demonstration agent.

This was the first time Greene County women had enjoyed such a program and the ten women who represented this county soon became enthusiastic campers, according to Ruth Radford, home demonstration agent. Those present were: Mrs. Jacob Heinz, Jamestown; Mrs. Leroy Jacobs, Yellow Springs; Mrs. David Bradford, Xenia; Mrs. Allen Andrew, Zimmerman; Mrs. C. D. Mairs, New Burlington; Mrs. Forrest Badford, Yellow Springs; Mrs. James H. Harner, Xenia; Mrs. E. J. Statard, Zimmerman and Mrs. Maywood Turner, Cedarville.

Besides these there were twenty-eight Greene County folks who came to call on the campers and received value from a part of the program.

There have been several names entered on next year's camp list and Miss Radford says she will be glad to add any others who might be interested.

The Theater

An example of the difficulties which beset movie directors is strikingly given in the fact that Warners are refilming a number of scenes in "The Gay Caballero," a fact which is not generally known.

The refilming is being done to avoid displeasing the Mexican government. It seems that Mexico objects to the bulesque portraits of its generals that have been found in some recent talkies.

Hearing this, Warners took stock of the character played by Charles

FRED KELLY WRITES STOCK MARKET BOOK FOR RELEASE SOON

Fred C. Kelly, former Xenian, well known author, magazine and newspaper feature writer, has completed a new book on the psychology of the stock market, which will be off the presses of Houghton Mifflin Co., Boston, next month, according to advance notices.

The book is entitled "Why You Win or Lose." The press notice issued by the publishers says that the work is a "shrewd, common sense, practical book on the psychology of the stock market crammed full of helpful material and designed particularly for those who speculate."

"The nub of Mr. Kelly's attitude toward the market is that he looks at it in terms of crowd behavior," the reviewer says. "Right at the start he declares that the successful way is to do the opposite from what nearly everybody is else is doing. In other words, one must be contrary. His development of this theory and its practical application furnishes not only one of the most valuable, but also one of the most interesting books on the stock market ever written."

"Mr. Kelly's material is being serialized in Barron's Weekly which has put out a nation wide campaign on it and the book has been endorsed by the Business Book of the Month Club. Mr. Kelly whose 'Kellygrams' are read and quoted from Massachusetts to California, is one of the most interesting men in the country and his subject is one of the most interesting subjects. The combination is a book that pretty nearly everyone will read with pleasure and also with profit. The psychology of the market is a subject worth every man's examination, or for that matter, every woman's."

Booth Tarkington the novelist, a personal friend of Kelly, made this comment regarding him: "In the world there is probably somewhere something that Fred C. Kelly thinks about as other people do, but in a fairly long and considerable acquaintance with him I have not discovered what it may be." John B. Watson says: "Fred C. Kelly is the logical man to make much a study of. Besides being a successful speculator himself, he has been a keen student of nature, both human and animal, for many years."

Mr. Kelly spends most of his time and does much of his writing at his farm near Peninsula, O., close to Cleveland.

The pace-setters

KEEPING-UP-WITH-THE-JONESES is no mere vagary of the cartooner. It is an actual condition in every city, town, village and hamlet of this great country.

There is a Jones in every locality to set the pace. But the average Jones is not a rich man—far from it. He has a good job, he dresses well, he is a good talker and splendid company. Jones is always the gentleman, welcomed at business conventions, public dinners and social gatherings alike. Mrs. Jones is envied as a successful hostess. Every woman in her set, and out of it, seeks bids to her bridge parties and other social functions. Their home is cozy, tastefully furnished and provided with most of the modern conveniences.

"How do they do it?" ask the neighbors. "We have as much money as they. Socially we are their equals." But without seeming to try, without putting on any "dog," the Joneses set the pace just the same. They have learned from reading advertisements how to have many desirable things at a little cost. They keep up to date on almost everything—just reading advertisements.

Keeping-up-with-the-Joneses is a comparatively easy matter—other things being equal. Read the advertisements regularly. Study them. Remember what you learn. Then, when you are in the market for anything, you will know, just as they do, what kind to buy. Soon you'll find yourself saving money, yet having more than you ever had. You'll find folks wondering how YOU do it. Oh, yes! It's fairly easy, if you make the most of your opportunities.

Advertisements are opportunities . . study them to your own advantage

HUGE RUM-RUNNING PLANT CAUGHT

TURK, AGED 156, SEEKS WIFE

Planning Divorce; No
Gentleman; He Likes
Brunettes

NEW YORK, July 19.—"She doesn't understand me. All my life I have been looking for a woman to understand me."

Thus today spoke Zaro Agha, the man who went 156 years and eleven weeks without a drink. The "ancient of days" who arrived in New York from Turkey via Providence, R. I., accompanied by a couple of managers, said, after all women is the most important in a man's life but he admitted his present wife, a mere maid of 67, was "getting old and cranky." He hinted a divorce—possibly in Reno. The Turkish gentleman, who added he hoped his present tour of America would be a financial success as though he has not decided just how he plans to rake in the coins, said he was much impressed with American women.

"I like brunettes, plump ones, but blondes are not so bad," he confided.

Agha said this century was preferred by him above others because "there has been more progress in the past twenty-five years, more done for mankind, than in the previous 150 years."

He denied he would come to America at the behest of prohibitionists to show what 150 years' drought will do to a man and said he did not drink because it was against his religion and not because he considered liquor harmful to health.

Agha expects to appear before various medical associations—for a consideration—and his first appearance is scheduled before the Medical Authors and Editors Association in New York.

The old Turk appeared in good health and lifted a 225-pound man off the floor to show his strength. Dr. Harry G. Ebert, United States health service, however, who examined Agha on his arrival here, said he displayed symptoms of senility, hardening of the arteries and a cataract of the right eye. Dr. Ebert would not venture a guess as to the age of the visitor, who is five feet eleven inches tall, weighs 170 pounds and is the father of thirty-three children.

Recently Agha has had no steady work. His first job was that of porter but after 112 years at that he got tired of it and quit. There was no future, he said, and he got a job juggling pianos. Then he went for a "Grover Whelan" and became official greeter in his own home town of Istanbul. Lately he has been just one of the greeters and "worked off and on."

Agha admitted he had fought in several wars, including four against Russia. He volunteered the last time at the age of 103.

There are three things the visitor said he wanted to do in America:

1.—Tackle John D. Rockefeller in a game of golf for a side bet of $40.

2.—Compete against John B. Voorhis, 101-year-old New Yorker, in a tree sitting contest or something where youth counts most.

3.—Match his great-great-great-grandson against Al Singer, the new lightweight boxing king. The great grandson, Armit Mussee, came along with his ancient relative and claims to be lightweight champion of Turkey and all points west.

ROOMERS FLEE FIRE IN SCANTY ATTIRE

CLEVELAND, July 19.—Fifteen persons were forced to flee the street in the nightclothes here early today when fire swept a large three-story frame rooming house.

One roomer, said to be Meyer Meiburg, leaped from a porch roof in his pajamas. A few minutes later he dived back into the burning structure got some clothes, and jumped from the roof a second time.

Hundreds of persons were attracted to the scene of the fire by the spectacular flames that erupted from the house. Eight companies and a rescue squad joined in fighting the blaze, which threatened for a time to spread to adjacent structures.

CLOSE THEATERS ON SUNDAY; TO APPEAL

STUEBENVILLE, O., July 19.—County authorities here today had abandoned plans for enforcement of the Sunday blue laws. Motion picture theaters, however, will remain closed on the Sabbath, pending an appeal which is to be made on a court order which was issued yesterday in the case of George Dells, manager of the Warner Brothers Theater.

Dells was found guilty yesterday of operating his theater on Sunday in violation of the Ohio blue laws. Sentence was deferred by the court after defense counsel announced that an appeal, citing error in the charge of the court, would be made.

Judge Jay H. Pasley told the jury that they "had a clear case and could do nothing but return a verdict of guilty," defense counsel said.

EFFORT TO EXHAUST OPPONENTS OF PACT IS POLITICAL MOVE

Long Sessions Mark At- tempt To Ratify Naval Treaty

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Fearing public censure if the senate is gagged by closure on an issue involving the national defense, the Hoover administration today resumed its studied effort to secure ratification of the London naval treaty by silencing the opposition through physical exhaustion.

With a 12-hour continuous session ending at 11 o'clock last night, administration leaders reconvened the senate at 11 o'clock this morning, for another day-and-night session. The full brunt of talking continuously day and night was thrown on the little band of treaty foes, since all senators friendly to the pact were under strict instructions to sit silently in their seats, pending collapse of the opposition.

Under this program, the administration confidently expected to break the heart of the treaty opposition by Monday night. If the treaty foes survive this test, the probability will be applied. A petition, requesting closure and signed by forty-four senators, has been held up by Senator Watson (R) of Ind. for the last three days. He has told other senators privately that he will not sponsor it unless there is no other means of securing ratification of the treaty. The petition, if introduced, would have to be voted on two days later and if two-thirds of the senate approved it, debate thereafter would be limited to a single hour for each senator. This would bring a vote within a few hours.

The trouble, which the administration faces in invoking closure, is the fact that it never has been applied to any measure before the senate, which involved the national defense. It has been invoked on numerous occasions to silence filibusters against legislation, affecting a community or a government department, but never on so grave an issue as a treaty, fixing the status of the American navy. The treaty foes however faced a hopeless task. The brunt of the hopeless task on seven senators—fighting fell on California, McKellar (D) of Tennessee, Copeland (D) of New York, Moses (R) of New Hampshire, Hale (R) of Maine, Odell (R) of Nevada, and Blaine (R) of Wisconsin. Johnson and McKellar have held the floor longer than the other five combined. These two senators plugged every gap in debate, which unless closed, would have resulted in a vote. It was only a question of time of how long these seven men could carry on their one-sided fight against a senate overwhelmingly in favor of the treaty.

SMITH CONVICTED; STATE PREPARES TO TRY HIS PARAMOUR

Trial Set Monday But May Be Postponed Is Learned

JEFFERSON, O., July 19.—With the twisted life of Tibby Smith, 26, bound-over-to-death, the relentless forces of law moved heartlessly forward today to commit his nursemaid paramour, Mrs. Maude Lowther, 22-year-old quarter-blood Indian girl and confessed trigger-woman in the cruel murder of Smith's wife, to a similar fate.

A conference between Prosecuting Attorney Howard M. Nator and the defense counsel was called today by Judge Charles R. Sargent to discuss the arrangements for the trial of the Indian girl, who has admitted that she fired the fatal shot in the murder of her ill-fated sweetheart's wife at Smith's instigation.

Trial of Mrs. Lowther was scheduled for Monday, but it may be postponed. It was regarded probable today that because of the death penalty which was imposed upon Smith yesterday, that there will be a change of venue and the case heard in another county.

Smith was found guilty of first degree murder in common pleas court here yesterday. The jury of twelve inscrutable men deliberated only thirty-five minutes. The verdict means that the young Ashtabula truckman, who has lived a virtual lifetime in the brief period of two months—feeling the thrill of illicit love, the horror of murder, the fear of apprehension, and the agony of trial—will on October 29 experience the sensation of death.

The date for Smith's execution was announced by Judge Sargent following the verdict of the jury and the convicted man's declaration that he "had nothing to say." Smith received the verdict stoical.

BANDIT SUCCEUMBS TO BULLET WOUNDS

Brinks had been in a local hospital for six weeks and then was taken to the county jail. He was returned to the hospital last Monday night.

TYPHOON LANDSLIDE CLAIM HEAVY TOLL IN SOUTHERN JAPAN

TOKIO, July 19.—Southern Japan was laboriously checking its death toll and property damage today after the worst typhoon in forty years had swept a destructive path across the Loosho and Kiushu Islands.

While disrupted communications and disrupted shipping still prevented any definite estimates many hours after the disaster, government relief detachments reported the storm had caused extensive dis-

GREENE COUNTY HIT AS MERCURY RISES; SHOWERS PROMISED

High Temperature Is Taking Death Toll Through West

Xenia and Greene County, with the rest of the midwest, scorched Friday and Saturday under a return of the torrid wave, which was broken by showers and hail storms which fell in favored sections last Saturday night and Sunday.

Drought, the worst in years, continued, drying up streams and wells in many sections leaving farmers with little water for household uses or stock.

The thermometer jumped to 94 degrees Friday afternoon, the torridity being aided by hot winds which did more damage than the sun to growing crops and pastures which wilted and burned under the combined action of heat and wind.

After a sweltering night, Xenians arose Saturday morning to find a torrid day. Partially cloudy skies did not give forth the rain they at times promised. There was a little hope of respite, the weather forecast being for continued warm with possible thunder showers Saturday.

Xenians are fortunate however, in that the city faces no water shortage. The municipal plant at Old Town is not yet pumping to capacity. Friday the pumpage jumped to 1,255,000 gallons, which is within 65,000 gallons of the high mark for a twenty-four hour period reached this season. In the first extreme heat wave of the summer the municipal plant pumped 1,320,000 gallons in one day. The second high mark for a twenty-four hour pumping period was 1,270,000, which was made last week.

After Saturday night and Sunday's rains and cooler weather which followed water pumping dropped, but commenced rising again and Wednesday had reached 1,055,000 gallons. Thursday 1,130,000 gallons were pumped.

The Cincinnati Ave. pumping station, used as an emergency source of water is being held in readiness by the water department for use in case of big fires taxing the supply. So far there has been no occasion to cut in on this station.

The unit at the Old Town plant has a capacity of 1,500,000 gallons a day.

CHICAGO, July 19.—Death began its march through the middle West today as the latest heat wave, bringing record breaking temperatures in many places, continued with no promise of immediate relief.

Two men died here from causes attributable to the heat. More than a score of heat prostrations were reported in the Chicago area which sweltered yesterday and last night under a temperature which reached its maximum of 100 degrees yesterday afternoon.

There was no promise of rain or relief today and it was feared that last week's heat wave in which 100 persons died would be duplicated.

The highest temperature yesterday was reported at Phillipsburg, Kan., where the thermometer soared to 113 degrees. In Omaha, Neb., all July records were broken with 107 degrees.

Various communities throughout the corn belt reported that crops were suffering badly from the heat and drought. Old resident said the situation was the most critical in twenty-five years.

DETROIT, July 19.—The Metropolitan area continued to swelter under a blistering heat today as the thermometer registered a near 95-degree temperature. The mercury reached that point yesterday. One drowning was recorded and five persons were prostrated by the heat.

ACCUSE BRITISH OF INTERFERING WITH INTERNAL AFFAIRS

Premier Protests Note Sent; Warships Keep Peace

LONDON, July 19.—Simultaneously with receipt of reports here from Alexandria that the British warships had arrived there for the safeguarding of foreign lives and property, Premier Sidky Pasha of Egypt accused the British government of interfering with internal affairs on the Nile.

protesting the general tenor of the British note which was forwarded to Premier MacDonald that the Egyptian government would be held accountable for the protection of foreign lives and interests, Sidky Pasha asserted he had always demonstrated his government's ability to meet its obligations.

He labelled the dispatching of the warships to Alexandria as an unnecessary act, pointing out that the sporadic outbreak had been quickly quelled and that the ring leaders had been arrested. Military forces at his disposal, he concluded, are sufficient to cope with any outbreak by Wadist factions. While calm was reported here from Alexandria, where fourteen persons were killed in political riots a few days ago, Cairo advised that Wadist agents have been warning European shops that forcible steps would be taken against them if they persisted in continuing in business.

FEDERAL OFFICERS CONFISCATE RADIO STATIONS OF GANG

Plotters In Mansions
Directed Liquor Fleet,
Is Said

NEW YORK, July 19.—Four super-powerful radio stations, capable of communication with Europe, a store of weapons and eight men were captured in raids early today on stately mansions in four exclusive Long Island towns.

These four stations, located after six months' effort by a corps of government radio engineers, have been directing whole fleets of rum boats running from Canada, Europe and the Bahamas to snug Long Island harbors, the agents declared.

The agents forecast that within twenty-four hours they will have nabbed two more powerful "nerve centers" which not only direct liquor, but do smugglers as well, and will have in jail the master mind back of the multi-million dollar Long Island rum trade.

And not until the unbelievably tremendous illicit liquor handling agency is entirely crippled will the raids stop, it is declared.

Information garnered bit by bit over the six months period has been checked and fitted into every step from now to the end is outlined, the agents revealed.

The flying squadron of twenty-five picked men started out yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and over a 150-mile stretch of territory made its clean-up in an all-night tour.

At the exclusive summer colonies of Quogue, Hampton Bay, Southampton and Mattituck the raids were made, in each case the agents were so well informed before hand as to their places and persons to be taken that there was no violence whatever.

The illicit stations were concealed, in each instance, in sedate mansions such as are occupied by the founding families of New York, the one at Southampton being directly across the street from the home of Colonel H. H. Rogers, multi-millionaire oil magnate.

Butlers and cooks were installed in each of the houses to lead to their disguise as homes of the wealthy summer colonists. But in each house was cunningly hidden a radio station powered by an independent generator and capable of communicating with a ship anywhere between here and Scotland.

Location of the stations had been worked out by the "triangulation method," in which they co-operated with the radio engineers.

G. O'Brien, special agent of the treasury department, aided by Charles M. Bernstein, also of the treasury staff, had charge of the raiding parties. R. A. Hatcher, chief radio engineer; W. N. Patten, radio engineer, and A. J. Lee, assistant, had "spotted" the stations.

COURT WILL DECIDE ON MERGER PROBLEM

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 19.—A "vital and critical point" was at stake today in the trial of the injunction suit against the merger of Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company with Bethlehem Steel Corporation as Judge David G. Jenkins deliberated upon the admissibility of further arguments over the compensation of Eugene G. Grace, as president of Bethlehem.

The point of question arose with the announcement of Frederick H. Wood, Bethlehem counsel, that the merger contract between Sheet and Tube and Bethlehem has been extended to July 31, pending the outcome of the present lawsuit. The merger was to have been consummated last April 30.

In view of the delayed merger contract, Wood declared, Grace should not be compelled to reveal his compensation since April 30. Judge Jenkins had previously ruled that the anti-merger stockholders were entitled to know Grace's salary and bonus agreement since the date they would have become stockholders in the combined companies.

CONFESSES MURDER OF WOMAN TO POLICE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 19.—Bernard Thompson, of Dorchester, Mass., today confessed to police here that he murdered Mrs. Edith Thompson Wright, his aunt, in her home in Saugus, Mass., "because she was talking about my mother." Thompson walked up to a policeman in the center of the city early today, and asked to be arrested.

"I see by the papers," he said, "that the police are looking for me." He had a copy of a Boston newspaper.

The officer, Vincent Targowski, promptly complied with the youth's request and took him to detective headquarters where within a few minutes he had written a confession, according to police.

MINIATURE GOLF COURSE MOVED TO NEW LOCATION AFTER SUIT

Halted by injunction proceedings from continuing with the construction of a miniature golf course at Detroit St. and the Fairground Road, Louis Menowitz of Cincinnati, moved the links to a new location on the Springfield Pike just beyond the corporation line.

Mr. Menowitz and his partner leased a lot on the east side of the pike a short distance south of the point where the Pennsylvania Railroad crosses the highway. Re-construction of the miniature course was commenced there Saturday. The lessors were released by the Carroll-Binder Co., from their contract for lease of the lot at Detroit St. and Fairground Ave. Attorney F. L. Johnson, counsel for the owners of the course, notified the law firm of Miller and Finney of his client's action. That firm brought suit Friday in common pleas court for thirteen property owners in the vicinity, asking that construction of the links be enjoined on the grounds that the amusement place would prove a neighborhood nuisance. A temporary restraining order was allowed by Judge R. L. Gowdy and the matter set for hearing on its merits July 24. The case will now be automatically dropped.

(The following letter from Thomas M. Earl, naturalist and taxidermist of Xenia, R. R. 2, near Cedarville, relates to a story carried in this paper regarding two young owls captured recently by O. E. Humphrey, farmer, east of Xenia. Mr. Humphrey did not have an expert opinion of the owls he captured but attempted to identify them from a book on natural history, and believed them to be Canadian hawk-owls. Mr. Earl's comment is interesting because of the information he gives concerning the owls found in this section of Ohio—Editor.)

MONKEY-FACED OWLS

Editor Xenia Gazette:

I was interested and not a little surprised to read in your columns of Wednesday about a so-called "Canadian Hawk Owl" found nesting on the premises of a farmer east of New Burlington. Evidently someone has made a wrong identification of the species in question, as the hawk owl is an exceedingly rare winter visitor in northern Ohio and is not known to nest in this state. I know of only one record of a specimen being taken in Ohio.

The bird found nesting will be discovered to be the ordinary and by no means uncommon barn owl (also grinnocla) which sports men call the "Monkey-faced Owl." It has a way when alarmed of protruding its beak, giving to the face a monkey-like appearance. The eyes of the barn owl are black, those of the hawk owl yellow. The color of the barn owl is tawny, with white breast and underparts, speckled with black. The color of the hawk owl is grayish heavily barred with black. Let me say in addition that the barn owl is a very useful resident and should not be molested. Its food is almost entirely mice. It is not known to harm either poultry or game, but is worth a dozen felines in preying upon rodents. It is protected at all seasons by law and the killing of the bird is punishable of a fine of from twenty-five to two hundred dollars. The barn owl came to us from the South; the hawk owl comes from the North. The former is now well distributed throughout the state, but everywhere it meets with a relentless and unmerciful persecution on the part of sportsmen and others who are ill informed of its good qualities. Why should we pump the monkey-faced owl full of shot every time it appears on the premises and says: "Good morning, I have come to eat up your mice."

ACCIDENTAL DEATH VERDICT RETURNED IN BLAST TRAGEDY

Coroner R. L. Haines rendered a verdict of accidental death in the case of Al. Graham, assistant foreman for the Pittsburgh-Des Moines Co., who died Friday morning of injuries suffered in a dynamite blast in Cedarville, where his firm is installing a water system.

Dr. Haines gave his verdict after an informal inquiry into the accident which he held Friday evening at the McMillan funeral home in Cedarville.

Brief funeral services were conducted for the blast victim Saturday afternoon at the funeral home, after which the body was shipped to Tiltonsville, O., the home of the Graham family, for burial. Two brothers-in-law of Mr. Graham came to Cedarville and arranged for the disposition of the body. Mrs. Graham, a bride of two weeks, had regained her composure after being prostrated by grief following the accident, and was able to accompany the body to Tiltonsville. The Grahams were married July 4.

Word has been received in Cedarville of the death of Stephen K. Rife, 71, which occurred at his home in Anthony, Kan., July 10. Mr. Rife was a former Greene Countyman, having been born in Miami Twp., the son of John and Mary J. Rife. He was a member of the M. E. Church in Anthony.

He was married to Miss Ada Stormont, who survives him with the following children: Mildred, Cash K. John Riley, Beatrice, Casper Lee, George, Audris and Clark. The following brothers and sisters also survive: J. B. Rife and Will Rife, near Cedarville; the Rev. Lee Rife, Philadelphia; Fred Rife, Anthony; Mrs. Mary Collins, near Cedarville and Miss Margaret Rife, Y. M. C. A., Springfield.

Funeral services were held at Anthony Tuesday with burial also being made there.

Word has been received here by Mrs. Joshua Brown, Cincinnati Pike, of the death of her aunt, Mrs. Abigail Powers, 85 former resident of Greene County which occurred at her home in Knights-town, Ind. Friday evening. Infirmitudes of age and complications was the cause of death.

Mrs. Powers was formerly Miss Abigail Carroll and was born in Paintersville, May 2, 1845. She was the widow of James Powers, who died fifteen years ago. She had often visited at the Brown home in the last few years.

Funeral services will be held at the home in Knights-town Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock with burial at Knights-town. Mr. and Mrs. Brown and Mr. and Mrs. James Conner and family, New Burlington, expect to attend the services.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

GIVE AND GROW—Give to him that asketh thee, and from him that would borrow of thee turn not thou away.—Matthew 5:42.

HELPFUL RULING

The United States court of appeals in Asheville, North Carolina, has handed down a decision that deserves careful attention from other tribunals throughout the country. Defendants who had been found guilty of liquor smuggling by a court in Baltimore, appealed and concluded that the pleadings in the trial court were faulty in construction, and that therefore they should be let out of prison. But Judge John J. Parker, who presides in Asheville, declined to see it that way. He said, "The time has passed when convictions will be reversed in the courts of the United States for mere technical defects in pleadings."

General recognition of the superiority of practical justice over mere technicality accorded in this ruling, is one of the great needs of the country in its fight to curb crime. In some courts, in some places, technicality has become such a fetish that frequently it is more obstructive of justice than any other one thing. It causes well nigh endless delays creates ridiculous complications, and throws a burden upon the police and prosecuting officers that plays directly into the hands of organized crime. In a lamentably large number of instances, the intricacies of legal procedure are a positive bulwark for wrongdoers against justice. A person accused of banditry or murder may be so clearly guilty that there is no doubt in the mind of anybody interested in the case regarding the fact; but a technicality may intervene, there may have been some little irregularity in the information, some petty defect of procedure, some infinitesimal omission or piece of carelessness, and everything is upset. The thug grins and goes free to continue his career. Those who are trying to get the upper hand of crime in America will never have a fair chance until all that ends, and any judge who makes a ruling which tends to break down exaggerated respect for technicality deserves recognition and thanks.

STUDENT WAITERS

An uncounted multitude of young people from schools and colleges are doing waitressing work all through this summer season, as waiters in hotels and restaurants, mostly in summer resorts. It is a splendid example of industry and ambition.

As these demure girls enter the hotel dining room, wearing the uniform of their position, you can hardly see them as they really are. The girl who so respectfully takes your order for ham and eggs, may be a college student who at off hours is working over her Latin and philosophy, and who knows far more than you do about history and mathematics.

Or that other quiet girl, who is so respectful and obedient, may be a gifted school teacher, who through the rest of the year occupies her position of authority and command in the school room, and a group of parents look up to her as the wise counselor and inspiring leader who is directing their children along the paths of knowledge. There are many thoughts in the minds of these silent maidens which you never dream of.

Some purse proud guests may think that waiting on table is a rather menial work, and look down at these young folks a bit. But these waitresses have more reason to look down on them, since these educated young people really know so much more of the world's wisdom than many of those whom they serve.

One can't help admiring all the young women and men students and others who take up such work as a means of obtaining an education. In making this effort to fit themselves for life, they show a fine seriousness of purpose. An education for which they gave and sacrificed so much will seem very precious to them. They will not fritter away their study time in idle pursuits, but will get the best that colleges and schools have to teach them.

The WAY of the WORLD

HOW NOT TO PUNISH

Don't humiliate children in school by punishing them in public. This is wise counsel given by Father Macelwane, Toledo educator, at the Catholic educational convention in New Orleans. Father Macelwane knows the value of the sense of self-respect and the importance of giving a child confidence and self-assurance. His mind and emotions may be crippled for life if teachers, whatever discipline they apply, do not show respect for the pupil's personality.

WHAT BABIES WANT

American Medical association members, meeting in convention, are told that when the baby wants meat and potatoes and refuses to drink milk, he is expressing himself normally—just like grown-up people. However, nobody would advocate feeding the baby a great deal of either meat or potatoes. It is easy to see that babies are much like adults and adults are much like babies. Because we want what we want doesn't always mean that we need it or ought to have it or that it would be good for us. Desiring it may be perfectly normal. Getting it may be easy. But it is not a sound policy for babies or men to think the thing they want is the thing they ought to have. We have been given judgment for some use. It's a great thing to use. It doesn't wear out. It improves if put to service.

AMERICA AT ITS BEST

A little Nebraska girl carries off first honors in scholarship in her county. Her average was nearly 97. And note the fact that her parents can neither speak nor write English. This is what America can do at its best. It can offer a chance. It can offer education, honor, victory without pull or privilege. No nation has a corner on the brain market. We want the little boys and girls of "foreigners." They make good. We don't care anything about going back to their great-grandfathers to find out what boat they came over in.

TOO FAST

An able lawyer, attorney in a noted case, kills himself just before court convenes. Friends talking to him earlier saw nothing wrong with him. Overwork and worry had been too much for him. He broke under the strain. Motor cars run beautifully at 40 miles per hour, also at 70 and more. But you can't run your motor day in and day out for a month at 70 miles an hour. It isn't made that way. Neither is the human system. Some men try it. Men have a way of covering up for a long time the things that are inside—the hopes, fears, ambitions, discouragement, despair. It is not so much courage as it is pride. It is a noble characteristic of people at their best. But the speed gets them before long.

We don't know the man we meet every day. We know how he looks, acts. We know what he says. We cannot look within. Nobody can. He may be running, inside, at 70 miles per hour.

What is the correct capitalization and punctuation of the oath to the flag?

"I pledge my allegiance to the flag of the United States and to the Republic for which it stands."

One Nation, indivisible, With Liberty and Justice to all."

Lindy's Flight

No, he was the sixty-seventh person to do so. Alcock and Brown, the crew of the NC-4, and two Zeppelin flights preceded Lindbergh across the Atlantic by air.

Baseball Careers

What age is considered the turning point in the career of a baseball player?

There is no definite age at which a baseball player's ability to play takes a definite turn. Usually between 35 and 40 a man's stamina and speed are reduced so he can't play through a strenuous season. On the other hand, Babe Ruth, who is 37, seems to be enjoying his best year.

How Much Money?

How much money is in circulation in the United States?

The treasury department lists $8,118,090,754 in circulation, although $3,725,649,727 is held in the treasury vaults. The former figure is the total of coined money and currency on the books of the treasury as outstanding.

Pa., Penn., or Penna.

Which is the correct abbreviation for Pennsylvania: Pa., Penn., or Penna.?

The postoffice department, which is considered the authority on correct abbreviations for the names of states, uses Pa. in its publications.

Copyrights

Is it possible to obtain a copyright without the assistance of an attorney?

Yes. To obtain a copyright send $1 together with a copyright application and the required copies of the material to be copyrighted to the copyright office of the Library of Congress. Application forms may be obtained from your postmaster or from the copyright office without charge.

Which is the right side of a house? Is there a permanent right side to anything?

Right and left sides are always relative. Since a house is stationary, and usually faces a street, the side on your right, when you are facing the street, could be called the right side.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK.—The other afternoon Amos started down to the bank with Andy to draw out $75 of his savings—to sink in Misto Van Poters "Holding Company."

And a radio fan wrote in to say that if Amos got stung on that particular "propulsion," he, the radio fan would stop using the tooth paste Amos n' Andy are advertising.

COCKEYED FAME

The construction of the two tallest towers in Turret Town—the Chrysler and the Bank of Manhattan buildings—developed into an altitude contest, ending with the Chrysler pile topping its rival by an inch or two.

Coming up the bay, from the Highlands the Bank of Manhattan Building commands the Battery skyline, dwarfing the giant structures that cluster around it.

Justice is blind and Fame is cockeyed.

Almost everyone on the excursion steamers points to the Bank of Manhattan Building and exclaims: "Ain't that Chrysler Buildin' a peach?"

EVEN UP

One of the best photographers on the Avenue employs a young woman with a dulcet voice, who, on occasions, gets into telephonic communications with celebrities for the purpose of acquiring stock photographs. Recently she called Mrs. Post and was rebuffed for what Mrs. Post construed as an intrusion on her privacy.

As a matter of fact, the author of "Etiquette" hung up on the young woman, who, ten minutes later, called the number back and disguising her dulcet tones, inquired:

"You are," was the reply.

"I believe you wrote the book on Etiquette?"

"Yes, I did."

"Well, read it!" snapped the young woman, and then SHE hung up.

IN THE DARK?

SENATOR FESS STRONGLY OPPOSED AS G. O. P. COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN BY SENATOR FROM NEW HAMPSHIRE

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Whether or not Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio was just about to become chairman of the Republican national committee I didn't know when I stopped in at his office one day recently, but I did know he was being strongly urged for the post.

He was being strongly opposed also. Senator George M. Moses of New Hampshire among others, was opposing him. Never mind the others; anyone who is opposed by Senator Moses is safe in considering that he is being opposed strongly. Moses never opposes anyone or anything any other way.

Exactly why the New Hampshire senator objected to the Ohio senator for the G. O. P. national committee chairmanship is not clear.

True, they are opposite types in many respects.

Senator Fess is ultra-orthodox and highly reverential of all things respectable. Senator Moses is to the last degree unconventional and bitterly cynical in his attitude toward everything. Moses is witty and epigrammatic; Fess serious and austere.

Nevertheless, they do have one characteristic in common: It is hard to tell whether Moses is more conservative than Fess, or Fess is more conservative than Moses. Anyway, they are a couple of the most conservative conservatives in the senate.

Illustratively, Moses will be recalled as having referred, not so long ago, to his so-called "progressive" G. O. P. fellow-soldiers as "sons of wild jackasses," whereas Fess termed them "pseudo Republicans."

That they had the same general idea is apparent, though they clothed it differently. Fess expressed himself in scholarly style; Moses scornfully.

Both jobs at the progressive also caused trouble. The Buckeye senator and the Old Granite statesman have that faculty in common likewise—a trick of firing off remarks with a powerful recoil.

Basically one would think that Senators Fess and Moses ought to be in agreement, despite their superficial dissimilarities. Their economic creeds are as alike as two peas—and economic issue usually count a good deal more among senators than any other considerations, such as Fess' dryness versus Moses' wetness, which is in point of divergence between them certainly, but not necessarily a very important one.

Nevertheless, Moses began to be quoted on all sides as anti-Fess mightily soon after talk of the latter started, as Claudius H. Huston's successor at the head of the G. O. P. national committee.

One theory was that Moses wanted the place himself. Quite likely that had something to do with it. Aside from that, however, Moses and Fess have two such positive personalities that I imagine they would rasp one another involuntarily. Moses is a newspaper man, accustomed to telling folk what's what in his editorial columns. Fess is an ex-college president, not a bit inclined to tolerate back-talk from undergraduates.

Anyway, Senator Fess was getting plenty of publicity in connection with Republican chairmanship prospects and it seemed like a suitable time to pay him a respectful visit. There was a first class excuse for it, too.

The Ohioan is vice chairman (which really means that he is chairman, because the titular chairmanship is held by President Hoover, who is too busy to bother with any of the actual work) of the U. S. commission for the celebration (in 1932) of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington. Thus he was bound not to turn down an opportunity to get some free advertising for the father of his country—the commission's whole problem being, as the senator said himself, "to make the American people George Washington minded."

And sure enough, he grabbed at the chance. He sat for his picture—out on the balcony in front of his office, opposite the Capitol building. He spoke enthusiastically of the first president's high qualities as a soldier and a statesman. He didn't refer to the G. O. P. national committee chairmanship, to be sure—but what could he have said on that subject of any consequence; not knowing himself whether or not Claudius Huston was going to resign and create a vacancy.

Senator Fess is rather a peculiar combination.

He is a bookish individual (as I said, he is an ex-college president). One is not surprised to learn that he is chairman of the senate's library committee. But he is also high up on the list of its interstate commerce committee members—this being distinctly a business committee. Moreover, he is a member of the foreign relations committee, which deals with world affairs.

And don't forget—he knows his politics. Otherwise he never would have been considered for command of the G. O. P. campaign organization.

In his own way, he is a singularly well-rounded personality. He is not a back-slapper. He emphatically is what one would call a "good man," of the somewhat stern, old-fashioned kind of goodness, I would say, and as determined as flint on the principle that the good folk shall run America—a fundamentalist. But he is no cloistered scholar. He has force, convictions and experience of a worldly strictly practical sort to go with his learning and is a political factor to be reckoned with.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By MRS. MARY MORTON

Garnishes

How much is added to the value of a dish when it is prettily served? A dash of paprika makes the mashed potatoes look much more enticing and takes but a second to add. A sprig of parsley gives a light touch to the meat dish and is quickly placed. A few celery curls dress up the platter holding the roast, and makes another way to use up the coarse stalks of celery.

We are all familiar with serving cheese with apple or fresh fruit or pumpkin pie. But just a cube of cheese is not nearly as attractive as a slice of the same cheese cut with a fancy cutter into different shapes, trees, flowers or conventional designs.

Salted crackers may be given special emphasis if they are brushed with melted butter and slipped into the oven just a few minutes before serving. A sprinkling of grated cheese on them makes a fine accompaniment to salads.

Salads Valuable

The value of salads in the diet is too well recognized to reiterate. They furnish extra calories, they give us one of the daily requirements of a succulent vegetable, and they contain valuable minerals and vitamins. They are a useful adjunct to the person who is reducing or watching weight, and at the same time are also useful to the person who is trying to gain. The former class of people eat salads because they are filling, and if vegetables are used with a non-fattening dressing, will not make them gain, while the latter type eat the hearty salads with the rich dressings to get the extra calories. As a regulating food they can not be passed.

The time of cooking makes or spoils vegetables. Overcooked, they are soft and flabby, dark in color and strong in flavor. Tender young vegetables will cook in 10 to 15 minutes, as peas, asparagus, spinach, cabbage, cauliflower, etc. Root vegetables need more time—and of course the older a vegetable the longer the cooking.

The question is always asked, "Does soda keep vegetables green?" It helps to do so—but it injures the vitamin value, so it is better to depend on leaving the cover off during the cooking to save the green color. Usually the water is salted at the beginning—a tablespoon to a quart, though perhaps it is better to salt tender vegetables when half done to avoid toughening them.

Peter lifted the screen and away sailed Mrs. Fly, happy that she was not to come to the same sad fate as sister. Danger she could meet with a high heart, but turn to dust! Ugh! That was another story!

"Thank you, boy, thank you. You have saved me from a sad fate. Open the window and let me out; that I may breathe the fresh air again."

Writer Urged To Consult Doctor

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

"Please discuss amebic dysentery in your column. I think the subject is of general interest."

Yes, amebic dysentery is of general interest. S. However, a sufferer must be under the supervision of a personal physician.

Anyone who suffers from a chronic diarrhea, with mucus and blood, should go to a physician for a complete examination, including a rectal examination and a microscopic examination of the stools, to determine the cause. It may be due to the dysentery bacillus, a type of germ (germs are the lowest form of vegetative life), or to some other infection, or to entameba (the lowest order of animal life, usually called ameba), or to some prolonged wrong dietary habit, or to some mechanical factors—growths, etc.

In any case of acute diarrhea, with blood and mucus, the patient should go to bed and have active medical treatment. In the acute stage of entameba dysentery (as in other dysenteries), there are pain and griping and tenderness and many watery stools. The condition may become chronic, or it may become latent and apparently arrest, when some dietary or other hygienic indiscretion will precipitate it again. The disease is most prevalent in tropical countries, and especially affects the workers whose occupations are apt to bring them into contact with a contaminated water supply—loggers, truck farmers, railroad constructors, civil engineers, etc.

In the life cycle of the entameba, they go into a resting stage, an encysted form, a much tinier form, which is very resistant to treatment or other agents which usually kill other microscopic animals and vegetable life. If there is any undigested material around, flies and other insects having access to it, contaminate food that they light on; and those who eat the food may become infected. (The campaign against flies and other insects is mainly because of the danger of transmitting infections of different diseases.)

In infected districts, the water and milk should be sterilized by boiling, and raw fruits and vegetables eaten raw should be exceedingly carefully washed and scrubbed and placed in a sterilizing fluid before being eaten. At the Battle Creek sanitarium they use a solution of dioxygen (peroxide of hydrogen)—one part to twenty of water. In Kellogg's "New Dietetics" he speaks of using a chloride of lime solution now, for the disinfection of the fruits and vegetables used at the sanitarium. They use one teaspoonful of the chemically pure chloride of lime to 25 quarts of water. Vegetables and fruits, after being thoroughly washed, are allowed to stand in this solution for five minutes. Neither of these solutions impair the flavor of any other of the food properties, in any way.

One of the most important things to be said about this entameba infection (and it applies to other infections) is that a correct diet is a tremendous factor in keeping the mucous membranes of the intestinal tract so resistant that even though you should get infecting agents, unless they were very virulent and in very large numbers, they wouldn't cause any trouble.

McCarrison, in a number of experiments with monkeys, showed that those on a deficient diet would contract amebic dysentery, while those kept under the same environment and in the same rooms, but living on a correct diet, would not develop dysentery, even though exposed to the infection and having some of the organisms in their stool.

So there are two things to suggest to you S.: Put yourself into the hands of a competent physician and take care of your general health, and especially have a balanced diet. We have an article on the subject which you may have by following column rules.

Editor's Note: Requests for articles or pamphlets on hand must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, plus the following small charge to help cover cost of printing and handling: for each article wanted, two cents in coin; for each pamphlet, 10 cents in coin. Can't Give Up Children

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a woman of 45 years and have been married but divorced from my husband. I have two children by his first marriage. They don't belong to me but I have had them since they were tiny little girls. One is eight and the other is seven, and I have had them six years and they seem like my own. I love them and can't bear to give them up."

"I have a chance to marry a nice man and I don't know what to do, as I won't give up the children. I have struggled through this far, maybe I can make it by myself. They are sweet little girls. Please give me your advice as to what to do."

"MOTHER OF TWO SWEET GIRLS"

I should think the nice man might take the two little girls, too, wouldn't he? You can't very well turn the children out. You wouldn't feel happy knowing they had no one to care for them, even if you didn't love them, and no matter how well your marriage turned out. And as you do love them and want them, I'd never give them up unless compelled to, if I were you.

Men and women can get along even if things are not so pleasant, but little children need a mother's care. You are fortunate to have these two dear children to love after and they are very lucky to have you to take care of them and love them.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I have read your advice. Please tell me what to do. I am in love with a married man. I am 16 and he has no children. He said he did not love his wife. He said he was willing to get a divorce for me and he is 32. Please don't tell me to give him up. Please answer as quickly as you can. This is not puppy love. It is real love.

"SUSANNA BROWN EYES H."

Dear, haven't you enough sense to know that a man 32 years old and married, who tells you the tale that all married men tell the girls who are fools enough to believe them—that he does not love his wife; that she doesn't "understand him"—isn't one to make a girl happy, even if she really loves him?

Of course you won't believe men, and it's a great pity, too, but if he isn't true to his wife, he isn't likely to be true to you, is he? In the first place, he is too old for you—which you also won't believe. In the second, if he and his wife really are unhappy together, why do they not separate, and then he would be free to make love to you?

You ask me what you shall do. Think for a moment; if another girl said she loved him and tried to take him from you, how would you feel? Well, that's probably how his wife would feel. If she found out about you, I think you should tell him to go and get his divorce if he is unhappy with his wife and then you will listen to him.

Novelties In Make-Up Don't Last

By GLADYS GLAD

THE PRESENT trend in cosmetics is toward naturalness. Cosmetics are continually devising new preparations for the enhancement of the feminine attractiveness. Those that fall within the present-day trend are popularly adopted. Bizarre novelties are born, and die almost at birth.

Recently cosmetics decreed that blue, green and opalescent fingernail polish be worn. Although this had had a run in Paris and in Spain, it has not been popularly adopted in this country.

The newest idea of the cosmetics is blue and green mascara. How this has captured the opinion of the American women, I do not know. But I refuse to believe that this fad will attain any great degree of popularity. The blue eyelashes may be fairly satisfactory for evening wear. So may the green. But my advice to those who aim to appear really lovely, and not freakish, is to avoid the new shades of mascara.

Different shades of eye-shadow creams may be utilized advantageously. The blue eye-shadow cream is attractive make-up for blue or green-eyed women. The brown or black immeasurably enhance the beauty of dark eyes when applied with skill and artistry. But the very unnaturalness of blue and green eye-lashes will make them appear ridiculous.

I think that for daytime wear, the eyelashes and eyebrows that are treated lightly with plain vaseline are really most attractive. The majority of girls who are trying to promote the growth and luxuriance of their eyelashes are using the vaseline. Of course, it leaves a glistening bit of grease on the eyelids, and under the eyes, but I find that this, this, serves only to enhance the beauty of the eyes.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Corns

M. K.: For effective removal, corns should be treated by a reliable chiropodist. This procedure will eliminate any danger of the toes being maimed.

Large Pores

G. F. and Dolly Seltie: An excellent astringent tonic can be made from eight ounces of witch hazel and at 4 rrr cent solution of borax acid. My method of refining large pores is too long to print here. However, it is contained in detail in my "Beauty Culture" booklet.

Sunburn

A. M. B.: To cure a bad case of sunburn, applications of linseed oil and lime water, half and half, are most healing.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin, for each to cover cost of printing and mailing. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

PINCH HITTING for Phil Frame BY R. A. H.

Louis Menowitz and his partner, have been halted in their construction of a miniature golf course at Detroit St. and Fairground Ave., by a temporary restraining order granted in common pleas court on petition of W. L. Miller, representing himself and other neighbors.

Menowitz had hoped to have the course ready for this week, but, with the application for a permanent injunction set down for the latter part of next week, and a good week's work still to be done on the course, there will be at least a two weeks wait even if he wins in the courts.

Neighbors bringing the action maintain that a nuisance will be created if the course is permitted to be opened and this is a question for the court to decide. Dayton has a number of such courses, many of them in the residential districts. Wilmington and Washington C. H. each have two such courses, built and in use for some time. Xenia has one, the course operated by the Henrie boys on the Springfield Pike and a visit there will show that the game is conducted orderly and even quickly.

The silence that engulfed Phil Frame, Art Hyman and "Skipper" Finlay when they left here for New York last Saturday has been broken by a letter Phil wrote his folks.

The "three musketeers" drove all Saturday night to reach Washington, Pa., the next morning at 5 o'clock and they arrived in New York Monday at 4 p. m. They saw the Cincinnati Reds defeat the Giants 14 to 8 the other day and saw Singer win the lightweight championship from Sammy Mandell Thursday night.

The trio called on Don and Art Currie at Lord and Taylor's and strolled up Broadway to give the effete Easterners a treat. They didn't say a word about coming home so there is no relief in sight for the readers of this column.

Standardization of softball rules in order to permit of inter-city competition on an even basis, is one of the things being sought by Bill Baxley, impresario of the high-flying Lang team in the National League.

Bill has hopes for organization of an inter-city softball league comprising teams from Xenia, Dayton, Springfield, Wilmington and possibly Washington C. H. To make such a league operative, it would be necessary to have the rules standardized and this now appears to be quite a stumbling block. Xenia likes the game the way it is played here, with the bases just half the distance for regulation baseball, the outfield ball used, nine men on a side and players permitted to steal bases. Springfield, however, began playing softball before any of the other cities in this section, and up there the game favored is one in which sixty-foot bases, an inexact ball, ten men teams and no base-stealing constitutes the rules. The Springfield players also use spiked shoes.

The question of the ball might be easily decided and even the ten-man team idea might be accepted here, because it makes for a closer game. In the meantime the league is being encouraged by intercity matches in which considerable interest is being aroused.

Thwarted a year ago by Lefty O'Doul of the lowly Phils, Babe Herman, pride of Flatbush, is hot after the National League batting crown this year.

Babe is hitting up close to .400, which is approximately the figure that will have to be maintained if he wants to win the crown. Babe is not "base hit crazy," as was charged last year, but is getting hits with the idea of helping the team, which is fighting for the senior loop fix.

Harry Hellmann, the Cincinnati Reds outfielder, may yet have to be considered in passing out batting honors in the National League. One of the reasons Harry came to the Reds so willingly from the Detroit Tigers, where he was a fixture for years, was because of the opportunity the trade gave him to shoot for the National League hitting crown. Hellmann has won the American League title several times and is anxious to set a record by also winning the top position among National League hitters.

AMERICANS FLEE FROM COMMUNISTS

PEKING, July 19.—Americans residing at Yochow again were evacuated and taken aboard a United States gunboat when large bands of Communist raiders approached the vicinity, according to a report received here today.

GRAHAM PAINTS BEAT GEYERS IN FAST NATIONAL LEAGUE GAME

The Geyers, one-time leading contenders for the title in the National League, dropped from a second-place tie with the Downtown Country Club to third place in the standing by losing a bitterly-fought battle to the trailing Graham Paints at Cox Field Friday evening by the score of 15 to 11.

The Geyers out-hit the enemy 20 to 16, but were impotent with men on bases, and many athletes were permitted to languish on the paths as their mates hopelessly popped up or grounded out when hits would have meant runs.

While Lloyd Downey, the bridegroom, yielded twenty safeties, he managed to bear down carefully when runs threatened and his mates gave him brilliant support.

The Paints accumulated a run in the third stanza. Downey singled, W. Cope was safe on Box-pitcher and Briley forced Downey at third. Kersey's single plated W. Cope with the first tally. The Geyers picked up two in their final stanza.

LANGS REGISTER 14 TO 8 VICTORY OVER SPRINGFIELD TEAM

Beat International Harvester Team At Its Own Game

Meeting the International Harvester Co. team of Springfield at its own game in Springfield Friday night, the Lang Chevrolet, leaders of the National League here, pounded out a 14 to 8 victory.

The game was played according to softball rules as used in Springfield, with an inexact ball, ten men on a side and sixty-foot bases and the Langs found this system to their liking. Williams started on the mound for the winners but retired in the fifth in favor of Gibney, who had been playing first base.

Lindeman and Hilderbrand shouldered the hurling burden for the Springfield team and the Xenia team out-hit the foe 15 to 13 on the evening with Ruse leading the attack with three safeties. Taylor contributed a mighty drive for a homer for the harvester team in the fifth. A large number of Xenia fans accompanied the Langs to Springfield and the players and visitors were entertained at a luncheon in the company field house after the game. The lineups:

GERMANY OPERATES WITHOUT REICHSTAG

BERLIN, July 19.—Political Germany was a beehive of activity today as preparations were launched for a national election campaign following the uproarious dissolution of the Reichstag yesterday after it had rejected Chancellor Bruening's finance decrees by a vote of 238 against 221.

The new elections, it was announced by the government, will be held September 14. The constitution requires that the new parliament convene within thirty days of that date.

In the meantime, the Bruening cabinet will govern the country dictatorially and issue emergency decrees under the sanction of President Von Hindenburg by virtue of the emergency clauses afforded by the German constitution.

NEW AGREEMENT ENDS COAL STRIFE

NEW YORK, July 19.—Strife in the anthracite region was held to be at an end today following adoption of a tentative agreement for the next five and one-half years between miners and operators.

The agreement, effective April 1, 1936, and taking the place of the present agreement which expires September 1, this year, will be ratified by the tri-district convention of the hard coal miners in Scranton, Pa., on August 4, according to John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and other union chiefs, who have been in New York for three weeks in conference with operators. Lewis called the agreement a remarkable contribution to the stability of American industry and prosperity.

Tennis

No. 6—COURT POSITION

Court position is one of the most important elements in tennis, and the fundamentals are simple. Court position means "Be in the right position of the court at the right time." To be caught "out of position" is tragic. To catch or work your opponent out of position is the ultimate end and object of every stroke and move in the game. There are only two positions on the court where it is safe or successful to be. First, in the back-court, two or three feet behind the baseline center, and second, approximately five or six feet from the net.

NEVER BE CAUGHT IN THE CENTER OF YOUR COURT; it is tennis suicide. The first position at the baseline should become your home office, from where you go and do your job and return. There should be no variance from this procedure. Keep your home office in your mind at all times. When the opportunity arrives for you to go to the net—GO AT ONCE and carry out your objective, which is to put the ball away. If you are forced back, go directly to the "home office" and prepare for the next move. It is one or the other at all times. To maintain and use these positions to full advantage the ball must be kept in play at all cost.

Make this law and keep it—KEEP YOUR EYE ON THE BALL—AND GET THE BALL OVER THE NET.

WORKMEN AT OSBORN FIGHT GRASS FIRE; MANY SUFFER BURNS

The entire force of the Southwestern Portland Cement Co., at Osborn, fought for five hours Friday, a grass and weed fire that threatened to assume dangerous proportions.

The flames swept over twenty-seven acres of the company's property and, driven by the wind, was rapidly approaching the property of the Wabash Cement Co., when it was subdued. Flames, at times, were ten feet high, fed by the tall grass and high weeds that covered the fields. The fire was beaten out finally by men with shovels and brush.

The blaze started from sparks thrown out by a steam shovel. When ordinary methods were found vain in stopping it, the entire force was called from the plant, and from 11 until 4 o'clock the men labored under a blazing sun in temperature close to 100 degrees beating out the fire in the dry grass and weed growth. Skins of the fire fighters burned and blistered under the combined heat of the sun and the fire.

WOMEN ENJOY FIRST CAMP PERIOD THIS WEEK NEAR CLIFTON

Thirty-eight full-time campers from Madison, Clinton and Greene Counties attended the Woman's Camp which was held at the 4-H Club Camp site near Clifton this week. There were fifty-seven visitors and part time campers who enjoyed part of the fun.

The program was arranged as a rest and recreational period for rural women. Mrs. Elizabeth Lane from Columbus, assisted as a recreational leader and gave suggestions for both camp fire and vespers services. Miss Mignie Price, state leader of home demonstration agents was full-time camper and led in the discussions at the afternoon appreciation hour. At one such period she chose "Real Values" as her subject and called the attention of the women to the valuable things of life that money cannot buy. At another period Miss Price led a discussion of the purpose and value of a Woman's Camp, and there was a unanimous vote to have another camp next year. The camp was under the direction of Elizabeth Masters, Clifton County home demonstration agent; Lucy Folsom, Madison County home demonstration agent and Ruth Radford, Greene County home demonstration agent.

This was the first time Greene County women had enjoyed such a program and the ten women who represented this county soon became enthusiastic campers, according to Ruth Radford, home demonstration agent. Those present were: Mrs. Jacob Heinz, Jamestown; Mrs. Leroy Jacobs, Yellow Springs; Mrs. David Bradford, Xenia; Mrs. Allen Andrew, Xenia; Mrs. C. D. Miers, New Burlington; Mrs. Forrest Batdorf, Yellow Springs; Mrs. James H. Harner, Xenia; Mrs. E. J. Stafford, Zimmerman and Mrs. Maywood Turner, Cedarville. MOVE FOR REHEARING OF REQUEST REFUSED

Application of the Central Ohio Lines Inc. for a rehearing relative to the order of the state utilities commission refusing the company's request for permission to extend its Chillicothe-Xenia bus route to Dayton was rejected Saturday.

The action of the commission is expected to pave the way for the company to appeal to the supreme court. The company, of which Carl Fent, Jamestown, is head, wants to extend the bus line from Xenia to Dayton through Osborn. The proposal gained favor here among business men because it would provide a transportation outlet for the northwestern part of the county to Xenia. The application was opposed by the Dayton and Xenia Traction Co.

FARMER INJURED IN EYE BY ACCIDENT

Ralph Rife, 29, near Cedarville, is recovering from injuries to his right eye, which he received last week when he was hit in the eye by a stick. The accident occurred when Rife and his brother Paul were driving some hogs and was accidentally struck in the eye when Paul attempted to apply the stick to a hog.

The injured man was removed to the office of Drs. Madden and Shields in Xenia, where the injured eye was treated. The sight of the eye will not be lost but will be weakened, the doctors stated. Since the accident Rife has been suffering from an abscess on the right leg.

Clarence Mickle, 21, who is spending several weeks in Xenia on a furlough from the United States Navy, received painful injuries to his left leg when he was thrown from a motorcycle on W. Main St., Friday evening. The motorcycle was the property of Lloyd Berry, 111 1/2 W. Main St., at whose home the Mickle boy was staying. Mickle had been attempting to start the motor of the motorcycle and was being towed by a friend in an auto. Finally, when the motor started Mickle lost control of it and crashed into a parked automobile. The car belonged to a Mr. Pratt, of Dayton and a front wheel of the machine was damaged.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 19.—The market showed somewhat of a respite from its spirited advances of the past week, in today's abbreviated session, and a generally softer tone brought about a minor set of declines in the main body of stocks. With the notable exception of U. S. Steel which further extended its advance into new high ground, the general run of speculative favorites gave way to profit-taking and professional pressure. Steel rose a point to 168 1/2, before meeting resistance, but other recent leaders such as American Can, General Electric, Radio, Westinghouse, Vanadium and Case Threshing showed declines up to 3 points.

Utilities ruled highly irregular, although rallying tendencies midway in the session brought them up from their extreme lows of the first hour. Strong demand for American and Foreign Power, North American, and United Corporation was offset by losses in Electric Power and Light, Consolidated Gas, American Tel and Tel and National Power and Light.

The Theater

An example of the difficulties which beset movie directors is strikingly given in the fact that Warners are re-filming a number of scenes in "The Gay Caballero," a fact which is not generally known.

The re-filming is being done to avoid displeasing the Mexican government. It seems that Mexico objects to the bulesque portraits of its generals that have been found in some recent talkies.

Hearing this, Warners took stock of the character played by Charles

GEORGE K. ARTHUR

Judels in "The Gay Caballero" and decided to make a few retakes as a move on the side of diplomacy. The general is to have dignity in the new version.

Several days ago Paramount announced that it had decided to call Buddy Rogers' brother, Frank Rogers, in order to give him a name should he make good under his new contract.

He has always been known as "Bh," a contraction of his father's initials, and the company felt he served a real name. Now Paramount has changed its mind again and will call him Bruce Rogers, who saves him his initial at least.

At the insistence of fans all over the country, the company is dropping the nickname "Buddy" for the famous brother. Hereafter he will be billed as Charles Rogers and you can call him what you please.

Olsen and Johnson, the famous vaudeville team who were heard on the radio several times last winter on the R. K. O. programs, have been signed by Warners to make pictures.

The fact seems to contradict the recent opinion that it is not good business to use two well-known team names in one picture. Olsen and Johnson are a couple of rapid dialogue artists who have the over big in individual sketches and as teams. Their imitation of a sidewalk speller is one of the best things they do.

The announcement of the splitting of teams came through the decision to separate Bob Woolsey and Bert Wheeler, stars of "The Cuckoos," who are now engaged in filming "Half-Shot at Sunrise" and are scheduled to make "A Going Concern" next. It all started a year ago when Karl Dane and Geo. K. Arthur dropped out of the limelight at M. G. M. but that same company has now uncovered one of the greatest comedy teams in history in Marie Dressler and Polly Moran.

The Orplum Theater management is bringing Fox's great musical story "Happy Days" to that theater for Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, it is announced. The

FRED KELLY WRITES STOCK MARKET BOOK FOR RELEASE SOON

Fred C. Kelly, former Xenian, well known author, magazine and newspaper feature writer, has completed a new book on the psychology of the stock market, which will be off the presses of Houghton Mifflin Co., Boston, next month, according to advance notices.

The book is entitled "Why You Win or Lose." The press notice issued by the publishers says that the work is a "shrewd, common sense, practical book on the psychology of the stock market crammed full of helpful material and designed particularly for those who speculate."

"The nub of Mr. Kelly's attitude toward the market, is that he looks at it in terms of crowd behavior," the reviewer says. "Right at the start he declares that the successful way is to do the opposite from what nearly everybody is else is doing. In other words, one must be contrary. His development of this theory and its practical application furnishes not only one of the most valuable, but also one of the most interesting books on the stock market ever written."

"Mr. Kelly's material is being serialized in Barron's Weekly which has put out a nation wide campaign on it and the book has been endorsed by the Business Book of the Month Club. Mr. Kelly whose 'Kellygrams' are read and quoted from Massachusetts to California, is one of the most interesting men in the country and his subject is one of the most interesting subjects. The combination is a book that pretty nearly everyone will read with pleasure and also with profit. The psychology of the market is a subject worth every man's examination, or for that matter, every woman's."

Booth Tarkington the novelist, a personal friend of Kelly, made this comment regarding him: "In the world there is probably somewhere something that Fred C. Kelly thinks about as other people do; but in a fairly long and considerable acquaintance with him I have not discovered what it may be." John B. Watson says: "Fred C. Kelly is the logical man to make such a study as this. Besides being a successful speculator himself, he has been a keen student of nature, both human and animal, for many years."

Mr. Kelly spends most of his time and does much of his writing at his farm near Peninsula, O., close to Cleveland.

The pace-setters

KEEPING-UP-WITH-THE-JONESES is no mere vagary of the cartooner. It is an actual condition in every city, town, village and hamlet of this great country.

There is a Jones in every locality to set the pace. But the average Jones is not a rich man—far from it. He has a good job, he dresses well, he is a good talker and splendid company. Jones is always the gentleman, welcomed at business conventions, public dinners and social gatherings alike. Mrs. Jones is envied as a successful hostess. Every woman in her set, and out of it, seeks bids to her bridge parties and other social functions. Their home is cozy, tastefully furnished and provided with most of the modern conveniences.

"How do they do it?" ask the neighbors. "We have as much money as they. Socially we are their equals." But without seeming to try, without putting on any "dog," the Joneses set the pace just the same. They have learned from reading advertisements how to have many desirable things at a little cost. They keep up to date on almost everything—just reading advertisements.

Keeping-up-with-the-Joneses is a comparatively easy matter—other things being equal. Read the advertisements regularly. Study them. Remember what you learn. Then, when you are in the market for anything, you will know, just as they do, what kind to buy. Soon you'll find yourself saving money, yet having more than you ever had. You'll find folks wondering how YOU do it. Oh, yes! It's fairly easy, if you make the most of your opportunities.

Advertisements are opportunities . . . study them to your own advantage
